Truman V-E Talk at 8 A. M.; Germans Finally Surrender

SHAEFLifts Gag on AP In Europe

By The Associated Press.

The Associated Press disclosed exclusively yesterday morning that Germany had surrendered completely and unconditionally. A rigid official news blackout still prevented formal Allied announcement of the fact, but this was expected today approximately 24 hours after the Associated Press dispatch.

Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press western front staff who scored the news beat—acclaimed by editors throughout the United States as one of the greatest in newspaper history—was indefinitely suspended from all further dispatching facilities by supreme headquarters in Paris.

For nearly seven hours after Kennedy got out the news in a brief but detailed and factual dispatch dated from Reims, France, the suspension was applied to all Associated Press correspondents in the European theater of operations, but this subsequently was lifted for all except Kennedy.

NAZI ANNOUNCEMENT
The Germans themselves first announced that they had surrendered, in a broadcast at 7:38 a. m. Atlanta time yesterday. This was without confirmation of any sort until Kennedy's short, straightaway dispatch was telephoned from Paris to London nearly an hour later and was flashed on the Associated Press wires in the United States at 8:35 a. m.

Several hours later the British Ministry of Information disclosed that Prime Minister Churchill and King George would make radio addresses today, which, the ministry said, "is to be treated as victory in Europe day."

From Washington and Moscow, which had expected to make the announcement through the heads of state simultaneously with London in a formal "set-piece," there was at first no word, but late Monday afternoon President Truman in Washington made arrangements to broadcast an address at 8 a. m. today, presumably to mark the victory over Germany officially.

KENNEDY'S DISPATCH
Kennedy's dispatch, datelined Reims—a town 75 miles east of Paris—said that "Germany surrendered unconditionally to the western Allies and Russia at 2:41 a. m. French time, today. (That was at 7:41 p. m. Sunday.)"

"The surrender took place in a little red schoolhouse which is the headquarters of General Eisenhower," Kennedy's dispatch then went on to name the parties signing, with other details, and quoted the chief of the German general staff.

Okinawa Forts Razed; B-29s Hit Kyushu Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Important gains for American Marines and doughboys on bloody Okinawa island and new advances by Allied arms on Tarakan, Borneo, have underscored official Pacific war reports.

Nearly 50 American Superfortresses, bombing through overcast with precision instruments, delivered the 18th strike against Kyushu island today, pasting two airfields, and industrial areas on the southernmost of Japan's home islands. Two B-29s were lost in yesterday's Kyushu raid.

Destruction yesterday of numerous Okinawa blockhouses, pillboxes and other defense positions by American naval guns and carrier planes was followed up by ground forces with smashing attacks all along the front. Marines punched southward to the edge of Dukeshi village while flame-throwing tanks led doughboy gains in the center of the line.

GOAL OF VICTORY STILL DISTANT—Symbolizing the struggles that lie ahead—battles in the Pacific, on the production front, and on the road to health—is this wounded serviceman at Lawson General hospital. He is Pvt. Edward E. Hargett, of Phenix City, Ala. Men like him need care and treatment—obtained for him and thousands he typifies through war bond purchases, all-out effort on the home front, and full backing for men who must still defeat a powerful, well-armed and treacherous foe. The hospital was a scene of sober rejoicing.

Pacific Fighters See Chance Now

MANILA, May 7.—(UP)—"Now WE can get started."

That's what officers at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said today the collapse of Germany meant to them—the release of men, tanks, planes and guns from the European war for the final drive down the hard road to Tokyo.

MacArthur's aide telephoned Mrs. MacArthur that the Germans had announced they had accepted unconditional surrender. She told her husband, who was preparing to retire, and there was no immediate comment from the man who will command ground troops for the final onslaught on Japan.

Word passed through the blackened streets of Manila. Joyous doughboys slammed each other on the back and whooped it up.

High military men cautioned, however, that "there still will be a long way to go before Tokyo is reached."

"We've come this far and might as well finish the job properly," one officer said. "That is going to take lives."

MacArthur himself sounded the battle cry earlier this year while Manila was still burning, saying "On to Tokyo."

There was a general feeling that it would be three or four months before more troops and proper equipment reach this theater to mount an offensive against the Japanese homeland.

Philippines' government officials, although hailing the European victory, cautioned against relaxing the Far Eastern struggle.

One, however, Senator Eulogio Rodriguez, who is organizing the Filipino senate, said that "Japan may now surrender despite its oft-repeated assertion that it will fight to the finish."

All 15 United Press clients in Manila issued extras on the basis of the German report. Soldiers and civilians wildly grabbed the papers, some handing newsboys a peso and telling them to keep the change.

Many soldiers said that although they had had a tough fight to now they still didn't want Japan to quit—they still would like to knock off a few more Japs.

Showers and Cooler
Weather Forecast
Thunder showers and cooler weather in forenoon, followed by clearing skies and mild in the afternoon, is the weather forecast for the Atlanta area today, according to A. J. Knarr, forecaster at the Atlanta airport.

The thermometer is expected to go to 72 this afternoon after a low of 58 in the early morning. Yesterday's high was 77 degrees with a low of 51.

A Prayer for V-E Day

Holy Father, people of good will all across the earth pause before Thee now with gratitude upon the high places of their hearts to thank Thee that one of the phases of the vast conflict has come to an end.

We believe the victory has come to those most fully in accord with Thy divine purposes, wherein it is Thy design that righteousness shall prevail; good will shall be enthroned, and peace be established that all mankind may live together on the earth free from want and fear.

Through Thy grace courage has been found; strength has come and wisdom has been given, that those charged with the task of freeing the enslaved and overthrowing the evil minded have not failed. In deep humility we pause remembering them with thanksgiving, unto Thee.

It is upon Thee, Father, that mankind must depend for the needed wisdom with which to turn these hours of confusion, and yet of wondrous opportunity, into the realization of man's immortal hopes for the completion of the temple of the unfulfilled. Ever Thou hast been faithful and it is with confidence that we turn to Thee now for that guidance needed in creating a structure of security for all in the family of mankind.

Thou dost see the greatness of the task yet to be performed in subduing those still engaged in acts of aggression. As Thou didst grant power to those bringing this day to western civilization, give strength and courage and wisdom to those Thy servants, still engaged in battle on the other side of the world.

Holy Father, from the depths of our hearts; from the far reaches of our desires; in the midst of the mingled joy and pain of this hour, we pray unto Thee with all intensity; with all earnestness and with all hopefulness that Thou wilt aid us to come before Thee at an early time to bless Thee that war is done the world around.

Holy Father, we could not speak to Thee in these words of gratitude and petition with any honor unless we sought also Thy forgiveness for all of us, from the least to the greatest. All thoughtful ones everywhere know that no one is wholly guiltless of the tragedy which has befallen the world. Forgive those, Father, upon whom the greater guilt of aggression rests, and aid us to see our own faults as Allied Nations and strengthen us now that we may move effectively to overcome them and put them from us.

While filled with wonder that Thou has designed that a new and better world shall be fashioned by human hands and hearts, before whom Thou has set a pattern and to whom Thou hast given a vision, and while awed by the magnitude of that task we thank Thee for the belief Thou has planted in us that it can be done. Help us, Almighty God, that we never lose that faith. Go Thou with us, Lord God of Hosts, that we shall fulfill Thy hopes in us; that we shall complete the work and that creation shall, ere long, hear mankind everywhere joining with Thy holy angels singing above all the nations and all the peoples in the world, "Peace on earth, goodwill toward men." Amen.

Molotov Says Reds Stand Pat on Japan

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—(AP)—Foreign ministers left their delegations to start today for Europe because of the changed war situation.

As delegates talked about a possibility of a plenary session of the conference tomorrow to celebrate V-E Day, Molotov said the Soviet delegation attaches great importance to areas of agreement on amendments reached by the Big Four sponsoring nations.

Asked what attitude the Soviet delegation would take if the Spanish government were invited to the party here, Molotov said vigorously.

"The question is so simple it does not call for a reply."

But the commissar said it would be desirable for Denmark to have a place at the Golden Gate conference.

Ike's Headquarters Scene of Peace Pact

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Germany has surrendered unconditionally to the Allies, completing the victory in the European phase of the second world war—the most devastating in history.

Prime Minister Churchill will proclaim the historic conquest at 8 a. m. (Atlanta time) today from 10 Downing street, London, and in Washington President Truman made arrangements to make a radio address at the same hour, presumably to proclaim the victory. Simultaneous announcement is expected from Premier Stalin in Moscow.

Churchill then will report directly to common and ask for adjournment to Westminster Abbey for a service of thanksgiving.

The whereabouts of such war criminals as Himmler, Goering, even Hitler himself although he had been reported dead, were unknown or if they were known they had not been officially announced.

Germany's formal capitulation came at 2:41 a. m. French time yesterday (7:41 p. m. Sunday, Atlanta time) in the red Reims schoolhouse, headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allies of the west.

The crowning triumph came just five years, eight months and seven days after Hitler invaded weak but proud Poland and struck the spark which set the world afire.

RAGE IN CZECHLAND

It marked the official end of war in Europe, but it did not silence all the guns, for battles raged on in Czechoslovakia.

There, Nazi Gen. Ferdinand Schoerner, who has been designated a war criminal, defied the orders of Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, successor to the dead or missing Hitler, to lay down arms.

But this force—all that remains of what once was the mightiest military machine on earth—faced inevitable liquidation or surrender.

Presumably, the victorious powers soon will label these troops guerrilla outlaws, subject to execution unless they yield.

King George VI sent Eisenhower a message congratulating him on the "complete and crushing victory in Europe."

The King will broadcast a message to the British empire today at 2 p. m. (Atlanta time).

The only details of Germany's ignominious end came from Edward V. Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the western front, who was the first to flash the word the world had long awaited.

WASHINGTON LOOKS AHEAD
Washington took German surrender as just another battle won—the biggest yet but not the last.

President Truman had only this to say:

"I have agreed with the London and Moscow governments that I will make no announcement with reference to surrender of the enemy forces in Europe or elsewhere until a simultaneous statement can be made by the three governments. Until then there is nothing I can or will say to you."

There was nothing in Washington to parallel the British announcement that tomorrow and the next day will be holidays.

Kennedy's story said:

"The surrender was announced unconditionally to the western Allies and Russia at 02:41 (French time) today in the big Reims red schoolhouse which is the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower."

The surrender, which brought the war in Europe to a formal end after five years and eight months of bloodshed and destruction was signed for Germany by Col. Gen. Gustaf (Alfred) Jodl.

Bloody War Rages For Czech Capital

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Men still were dying last night in Czechoslovakia, where the Nazi commander ignored his country's unconditional surrender to the Allies and was fighting on against American and Russian troops and Czech Partisans.

The Partisans, engaging the Germans in bloody street fighting in the capital city of Prague, sent out desperate appeals for assistance. Prague was being burned and sacked by the beaten Nazis in a final orgy of destruction.

Gen. Patton's Third Army tanks and infantry drove to the outskirts of the Czech capital, and the German-controlled radio station in Prague said Soviet forces had entered Bohemia at a point 60 to 85 miles north of the city.

Patton was using nearly 250,000 American troops in the final mop-up. His forces already had overrun the great beer and munitions center of Pilsen. Breslau fell to Russian forces after a long siege, and only two German cities, Dresden and Chemnitz, remained in Nazi hands. They apparently were being defended against the Russians in defiance of the surrender at Reims.

The German commander in Norway ordered his forces—estimated to number 200,000—to lay down arms.

PREWAR VOLUME IN YEAR

More Civilian Goods Seen in Six Months

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Federal machinery soon will be set in motion to restore limited supplies of most goods within six months and a prewar volume of production in a year.

War agency executives kept mum on their plans, awaiting the official proclamation of victory in Europe, but a ferment of activity was discernible behind the scenes.

The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion prepared to issue, within 48 hours after formal announcement of V-E Day, a sweeping blueprint of home front plans for reconversion, rationing, manpower, price and wage controls during the period of one-front warfare.

Its dominant message was expected to be: "Stay on the job for the major war which remains to be fought and won."

The "brownout" of unnecessary lighting will be revoked immediately after the presidential announcement of V-E Day, the War Production Board has announced. Other officials indicated the midnight curfew and the horse racing ban would follow it into the discard in comparatively short order.

WPB, meanwhile, studied plans to lift its flat ceiling on civilian goods manufacturing. That program went into effect four months ago today, freezing nonmilitary production to the level of October, November and December. Every recent WPB statement has indicated, however, that the relaxation of wartime industrial controls will be gradual.

For civilians, the transition to an economy half of war and half of peace shaped up approximately as follows:

RATIONING: Gasoline rations for A-card drivers will be boosted, perhaps 50 per cent, within 30 to 60 days after V-E Day; tire supplies will improve gradually; all food rationing will continue indefinitely with sugar, meat, fats and oils especially tight in the months just ahead.

HARD GOODS: All durable goods industries—including refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles and vacuum cleaners—are expected to get the reconversion go-ahead within four to five months after V-E Day. The retreating and refitting of plants will delay actual production longer, but WPB makes the flat prediction that all will be on the market within 12 months.

Soft goods: Shoes, clothing, textiles and lumber and some chemicals may be even scarcer for many months than they are now.

MANPOWER CONTROLS: The 48-hour week, controlled hiring, and manpower ceilings will be continued, for male workers at least, in labor shortage areas. Controls will be dropped at the discretion of local manpower officials.

had not insisted on Russian desires of week, controlled hiring, and manpower ceilings will be continued, for male workers at least, in labor shortage areas. Controls will be dropped at the discretion of local manpower officials.

1. Express provision for principles of justice and international law, equality and self-determination of nations, the encouragement of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

2. Provision for keeping treaties aimed at enemies in this war out of the jurisdiction of a proposed security council in a world organization. The idea that such treaties should be subjected to review was rejected as untenable.

POWs To Be Held Till Japan Falls

By LOUIS M. LYONS.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(NANA)—What happens, now, to all the German prisoners of war held in this country?

They will be held here and useful work will be obtained from them until the war with the other end of the Axis is ended, it is said at the office of the provost marshal general, which has custody of the more than 420,000 war prisoners in this country.

As of Friday, they included 248, 108 German prisoners, 50,302 Italian prisoners, 32,471 other Italians who have volunteered for service, and 3,886 Japanese.

CAPTIVE LABOR VALUE

The labor of prisoners of war held in this country has been assigned a value of $100,000,000, for 1944, by the Army. Even though the Geneva convention on prisoners does not permit working them in manufacture or transport of munitions or supplies for troops, almost 100 per cent of German prisoners have been kept busy doing work which relieved either American soldiers or our tight manpower situation.

The provost marshal general's office expects that this will be continued until Japan is defeated. The course has been taken on both sides, in this war, so far. The Germans held their French prisoners after the 1940 armistice.

"It is monstrous the way people go about nowadays saying things behind one's back that are absolutely and entirely true..."

BEAUTY AND THE BONDS—Petite Dixie Dunbar is shown as she sells the first war bond she autographed in the Henry Grady hotel bond booth yesterday afternoon. In town for a dancing engagement at the hotel, Dixie said she hopes everybody in her home town will buy a war bond in honor of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

the German prisoners will be kept here.

Italian prisoners of war here are of two classes. Those who were Fascists and unco-operative, 50,302, continue to be treated as are the Germans. Those who volunteered for service units, 32,471, agreed to perform any work short of combat. This agreement followed the change of status of Italy to non-belligerent.

80 CENTS FOR ITALIANS

The Italian service unit prisoners receive the same pay, 80 cents a day, as other prisoners. But they get it every day, Sundays and all, for a $24-a-month wage, and they can have the use of one-third of it. The other prisoners can have only coupons to use in prison camp canteens, which are charged against their allowance. The rest is credited to them against final release. They must stay in their compounds except when on work details.

The Italian service unit members wear "Italy" on an armband instead of "PW" painted on the back. They are allowed freedom of the posts, to attend the post theaters, and are not guarded or held behind barbed wire. They have been valuable in loading cargoes at ports of embarkation, for which regular prisoners of war cannot be used.

The great part of the work that the German prisoners of war do is at the 152 base camps and 342 branch camps set up for them. It is easier to guard them, feed them and work them at the camps and there is plenty of work for them. They salvage equipment and clothing, repair and clean vehicles, dig ditches, make roads, do carpentering and painting.

PRISONERS "CONTRACTED"

Some are also "contracted out" under guards for special kinds of work under careful restrictions. They have cut pulpwood, picked cotton, transplanted tomatoes, worked in the packing and canning plants and at loading freight cars.

The Army record shows more than 93 per cent of the prisoners are kept at work. Much of their work is seasonal.

The Army figures that the 29,750,992 man-days of work done by prisoners of war in 1944 was worth $80,000,000. Their contract work brought to the Treasury $22,000,000. Anyone who hires prisoners of war pays the prevailing wage to the Treasury which profits by the difference above the 80 cents a day prisoner allowance.

Applications for prisoners of war to work must clear through the War Manpower Commission, whose rule is that it must be shown there is no free civilian labor available and that prevailing wages must be paid. The Army will not contract fewer than 10 prisoners on a job, because it is not economical to provide guards for smaller batches.

The Geneva convention rule is that able prisoners of war may be used for work according to rank and aptitude. Officers are not required to work. Non-commissioned officers can be required to do only supervisory work.

The Army has a "no-work, no-eat" rule. At any sign of strike or slowing down the recalcitrants are put on a bread-and-water diet, which has been effective.

Lublin Poles Stand Pat on Rivals' Arrest

LONDON, May 7.—(UP)—The Lublin radio said today that the Polish provisional government, which is recognized by Russia, reserves the right to demand that Gen. Leopold Okulicki and other Poles arrested by the Russians be turned over to Polish authorities.

Russia announced Saturday that 16 Poles had been arrested behind Russian lines for illegal activities, including possession of illegal radio transmitters. A British foreign office commentator said today that it was able to "confirm that Vice Premier Jan Jankowski (of the London Polish government) was one of them."

The Lublin broadcast said that the activities of Okulicki, who has been identified as the last commander of the Polish home army, and his accomplices were directed against the "reborn Polish state" as well as the Red army and therefore "constitutes high treason."

Buy Bonds! That's Sane Way To Mark V-E Day

Today, while Atlantans are celebrating the end of the European conflict, American men are dying in the Pacific.

At this moment, families of those men are longing for a real reason to celebrate. But the thoughts of bitter fighting ahead are not conducive to a spirit of rejoicing.

To show these families and those Georgia fighting men that we at home have not forgotten our small share in this war, prominent Atlantans in every walk of life have recommended a sane and appropriate way to mark this V-E Day — buying War Bonds.

Those who are backing the purchases of V-E Bonds are: W. E. Mitchell, president Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; George Googe, regional director, American Federation of Labor; J. W. Battle, chairman, DeKalb Chamber of Commerce; R. W. Courts, chairman, Community and War Fund; Freeman Strickland, Atlanta Clearing House Association; Robert Strickland, president, Trust Company of Georgia; Lane Young, president, Citizens and Southern National Bank; Clyde Williams, president, First National Bank; Erle Coker, president, Fulton National Bank; L. W. Robert, chairman, Robert & Company; A. B. Cates, president, Adams-Cates Company; Paul W. Miller, treasurer, Atlantic Steel Company; L. W. Flowers, Railway Brotherhoods; Jere Wells, superintendent, Fulton County schools; Miss Ira Jarrell, superintendent, Atlanta schools, and William S. McLarin, president, Federal Reserve Bank.

Canada Proclaims Public Holiday Today

OTTAWA, May 7.—(P)—The government today proclaimed tomorrow a public holiday in Canada, and next Sunday as a day of thanksgiving.

J. L. Ilsey, acting prime minister, said in a nation-wide broadcast: "The hearts of Canadians will be not filled so much with the pride of conquest as with relief and thanksgiving and a firm resolution to carry on the war until our enemy in the Far East meets the just fate that surely awaits him."

President Roosevelt signing the Declaration of War, December 8, 1941.

Let's Finish it for Him

"Though his voice is silent, his courage is not spent, his faith is not extinguished. The courage of great men outlives them to become the courage of their people and the peoples of the world."

from the proclamation of President Truman, setting the period of mourning for Franklin Delano Roosevelt

His unfaltering courage and faith in total victory were Franklin Roosevelt's solemn bequest to America. To us he threw the torch. Be ours to hold it high . . . to buy bonds, to give blood, to work, to fight . . . until the final Amen of peace. Let's finish it for him who lived to assure the finish but not to share in its fruits. Let's finish it for him who laid down his life for peace. With his example to strengthen and inspire us . . . in his own ringing words . . . "We will gain the inevitable triumph...so help us God."

Davison's

City, State Officials Unite In Devout Thanks for Victory

Atlanta and Georgia officials rejoiced thoughtfully yesterday, rejoicing that one phase of the war has ended victoriously, and at the same time prayed that the war in the Pacific theater also will soon end in victory.

"Let our people return thanks to God," Gov. Arnall said in a brief statement issued at the capitol. "And at the same time we should remember that men are still dying in a savage warfare out in the Pacific and we should pray for a speedy termination of that conflict. Let us thank God for the victories that have come thus far to our cause, and pray for everlasting peace."

"Thank God," was the brief message from House Speaker Roy Harris, of Augusta.

"Now that V-E Day has arrived, the state planning board is speeding its work in planning for the fast approaching postwar period," Dr. L. Vaughn Howard, executive director of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board, said from his office in Athens. "The end of the European conflict will undoubtedly give encouragement to plans now in the making for the advancement of this state in economics, health and education."

"RELIEF AND GRATITUDE"

"My first reaction to the end of the European war is a sense of relief and gratitude, to all who have made victory possible by their patriotism and sacrifice," E. Marvin Underwood, judge of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, said. "Then comes a feeling of anxiety about the peace, and a prayer that those who have the responsibility for the character of the peace may have the wisdom, courage, unselfishness and vision for a lasting and a just peace."

U. S. Atty. Neil Andrews, a veteran of World War I, whose son is now in Germany, said:

"Although Germany is defeated, I don't think this is the time for jubilation. The war with Germany was just one great battle in a larger war that is still going on."

"V-E Day is just another point on the long road to peace," U. S.

Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt, who was overseas in World War I, said. "To many of the American soldiers in Europe it marks the end of one battle and the start of another."

MAYOR'S EXPRESSION

"It is a day of solemnity," Mayor Hartfield said. "The war is not over yet, and we should remember those who have given their lives for the cause in Europe and in the Pacific theater. They can do no celebrating. There is still bitter fighting going on in the immediate vicinity of Japan, and many of our good men are yet to give their lives in the cause we are fighting for."

Mayor Pro Tem Howard Haire said:

"We should get down on our knees and thank God for this, and we should remember to pray for an early victory in Japan. We can now concentrate our efforts in the Pacific and, with the help of our allies, we may be able to see peace sooner than most of us expected."

"This is no time for a real celebration, but rather for thanksgiving," Ed S. Cook, president of the Atlanta board of education said. "Until Japan is out of the war—knocked out conclusively—and its armies, navy and air force completely crushed, we must guard against a letdown."

MISS JARRELL REJOICES

"We rejoice that the European part of the struggle is over," Miss Ira Jarrell, city school superintendent, said. "And we are now ready to enforce peace against Japan. It is the duty of every American to continue to make his contribution to a victory over Japan."

"It is good news to all liberty-loving people," Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of the Fulton superior court, said. "It means the beginning of our plans for preventing future wars."

"Now we can turn loose those fellows who are fighting in Europe and knock out the Japs," said Solicitor General E. E. (Shorty) Andrews, who served in the Navy in World War I and has a son now in the Navy. "With our powerful allies and our own power we can finish off the Pacific war in quick style."

REMEMBER JAPAN

"Let not our emotions allow us to forget the enemy in Japan," said Solicitor Lindsey Camp, of the criminal court of Fulton county, who served in France in World War I. "I have high praise for our soldiers and we should show our humble appreciation to them for the greatest feat of all time."

Chief Justice R. C. Bell, of the state supreme court, who lost his son—Vereen Bell, noted author—in battle, said:

"The cost of victory has been too high and too sacred for hilarity and revelry. It is a time for rejoicing, yes, with prayers and thanksgiving. Nor is victory yet. It is only closer to view, for thousands more may yet have to suffer and die before Japan, that other monster of aggression, is overcome."

"And while it seems that civil-

A Catholic Prayer

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS!

We adore Thee! We bless Thee! We glorify Thee, O Eternal Father, God of Mercy and of all Consolation because Thou hast hearkened to the prayers of Thy people.

Out of the depths we have cried to Thee for long and now Thou hast heard our prayer. Grant, O Merciful Father, that the ending of war in Europe be but the pledge of the early cessation of conflict in the east.

Blessed Art Thou, O Lord, the God of Israel, our Father from eternity to eternity. Thine, O Lord, is magnificence and power, and glory, and victory; and to Thee is praise. For all that is in heaven, and in earth, is Thine. Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and Thou art above all princes.

Thou art richer, and Thine is glory; Thou hast dominion over all. In Thy hand is power and might; in Thy hand greatness, and the empire of all things.

Now, therefore, our God, we give thanks to Thee; and we praise Thy glorious name. (1 Par. XXIX, 10-13.)

VOICES FROM DEAD

Dr. Schacht, Leon Blum Are Found

By SID FEDER

DOBBIAICA, Italy, May 7.—(AP) One hundred and thirty-three political hostages of the Nazis, many of them internationally known—have been freed by American soldiers after narrowly escaping execution by the Gestapo and SS troops ordered to kill them rather than permit their liberation.

Like voices from the dead, men such as Leon Blum, one-time premier of France; Kurt Schuschnigg, the Austrian premier who opposed Hitler's grab of that country, and Pastor Martin Niemöller, told me of their escape.

RESORT HOTEL

They and the others, including the Reichsbank, and Alexei Kolosin, a nephew of Foreign Minister Molotov, of Russia, were released from a resort hotel eight miles southwest of this highway town, less than 15 miles west of the Austrian border.

Troops of the U. S. 85th Infantry Division, took the hotel and rounded up its garrison of 150 German soldiers. All the hostages were in surprisingly good condition.

Credit for saving the group from death was given to Sigismund Payne Best, a Briton whom the Nazis seized in 1939 in a foray into neutral Holland, and Gen. George Thomas, a former commander of the Wehrmacht, who was arrested when he advised Hitler against invading Poland.

TRICK WORKS

Best's official order directing the SS troops and Gestapo agents to wipe out the hostages if the Allies threatened to free them. He told Gen. Thomas, who persuaded the German army commander in this sector to send a company of regular German soldiers to protect the group.

Best notified the Gestapo leader that he was taking command under the Wehrmacht and, to his surprise, the scheme worked. The Gestapo and SS troops left.

Among the liberated were: Nicholas Kallay, former premier of Hungary; Gen. Franz Halder, former chief of the German general staff; Alex von Stauffenberg, who reputedly placed the bomb which injured but failed to kill Hitler July 20; Prince Friedrich Leopold, of Prussia; August Thyssen, member of the Thyssen Ruhr industrial family which financed Hitler's rise; and Nicholas Horthy Jr., son of the former Hungarian dictator.

Oaks formula, is packing for a midweek departure. Others also may be on their way home soon, says Pedro Leao Velloso, Brazilian foreign minister. Velloso spoke jubilantly of Germany's capitulation.

"Thank God the Nazi monster has fallen, overcome by victorious Allied arms," Velloso said. "We must remain alert that it never rises again. That is why we are assembled in San Francisco, to organize a world police system against war criminals with the aim of preventing a resurgence of the Nazi-Fascist spirit."

A heavy task of work remains to be accomplished before that can be done. Many small countries are far from satisfied with proposals the big powers have made for strengthening the proposed world constitution. They still want more power for themselves, and the Latin Americans are hammering for a greater recognition of their own inter-American security system.

But word that Molotov had said the Soviets would support American-Chinese-British desires with respect to inspection of regional systems into the world charter as well as their wishes on review of treaties or any other situations threatening peace, served to cement big power efforts at unity.

It was only the fact that King Leopold had made his way out of Germany that sent Spaak on the way across the Atlantic. A Belgian spokesman said his departure was precipitated also by the break-up of German resistance.

Li said at a hurriedly summoned news conference that "urgent matters pertaining to the liberation of Norway" made his return to his government in London imperative.

JOY IS SUBDUED

City Quietly Hears News Of Surrender

The song of victory was quietly heard in Atlanta.

The people went about their business yesterday when the news flashed from France that peace had come to the battlefields where no more men would fall.

Half smiles were on the lips of the people of Atlanta and a happiness that was incomplete was in the hearts. Joyous spirits were subdued as the people waited for another victory.

Many people of Atlanta could not find it in their hearts to believe that the European war had finally ended. Telephone calls glutted the switchboards of the Constitution, many asking "Is it really true?" Lack of confirmation from President Truman left doubts in the hearts of many.

NO PARADE, NO FANFARE

Five Points was quiet and the fanfare and celebration so many Atlantans thought would jam the business section were absent. There was no parade, little blowing of horns and only a few small bits of paper dropped as confetti floated into the streets.

The retail stores did not close in observance of the historic day, many expressing a curiosity whether the peace report were true. Representatives from several Atlanta business firms telephoned government agencies seeking confirmation from President Truman before they declared a holiday.

When they were told that confirmation had not come many announced their employees would not work a holiday until the war in the Pacific had ended.

Oby Brewer, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, declared that the piecemeal manner in which the peace had been determined by the organization to wait until final victory.

NO UNDUCE DISORDER

Manifestation of Atlanta's calm reception of peace in Germany was found on the police "blotter" that is a weathercock of Atlanta celebrations. There was no increase in the number of arrests made for misdemeanors such as drunk and "disturbing the peace."

Police Chief M. A. Hornsby said the routine of the police was only interrupted by the large increase in telephone calls from Atlanta merchants, each questioning whether they should close their business.

Liquor stores, their stocks depleted by the war, remained open. Their wartime stocks of rum, wine, gin and other alcoholic beverages, did not sell any faster than on any other day. Chief Hornsby said the liquor stores would remain open until confirmation from President Truman arrived, then their doors would be closed for two days.

Many radios blared the jumbled and dissected news of peace in Europe in offices in the state capitol. The state's business was carried out as usual with only a small percentage of absenteeism.

The city hall and Fulton county courthouse, like the state capitol, remained open to move the city's and county's business. Schools were not closed. A meeting of city council was carried out yesterday afternoon on schedule.

Atlanta churches were of divided opinion on when they should celebrate. Many of the downtown churches held noon services of prayer, sermons and song. Others waited until last night, while many were waiting for Truman's confirmation.

Many soldiers and sailors attended the noon and night services joining in prayer at the end of one war, many of them know so well.

Work as Usual At Big Army Depot

Work went on as usual yesterday at the vast Atlanta Army Service Depot.

The thousands of employees at the depot, one of the Army's greatest supply installations, last week voluntarily pledged to refrain from any celebration on V-E Day. Moreover, they volunteered to work overtime on that day if necessary.

ONLY SMILES AND MURMURED WORDS AT GRAVE OF MAN WHO DIED FOR V-E

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 7.—(AP)—As a happy world heralded victory over Germany with cheers and tears and prayers of thanksgiving, only a few murmured words and faint smiles marked the day at the grave of the man who worked himself to death to make V-E possible.

Soldiers with rifles quietly patrolled the rose garden in which Franklin D. Roosevelt was buried April 15—three weeks before the unconditional surrender he had demanded and confidently predicted.

The guards smiled when they heard the news, exchanged a few murmured words and resumed their slow pace along the evergreen hedge that surrounds the still unmarked grave.

Mrs. Roosevelt was in New York city. She did not comment immediately on the German capitulation.

A LOT OF GUYS DYING

Bond-Buying War Victims Warn 'It's Only Half Over'

By CECILE DAVIS.

If you're planning a V-E Day celebration, stop and think about the guys who can't celebrate—the wounded soldiers at Lawson General hospital who are lying in bed recovering from amputations and broken bones.

To the wounded men at Lawson General, the end of the war in Europe is just another step toward a far-away victory. Sure, they're glad it's over on the other side of the Atlantic, but they know there's still a long way to go on the other side of the Pacific.

"Every minute it lasts over there, there's a lot of guys dying," Pvt. Edward E. Hargett, of Phenix City, Ala., said soberly. "I'd like to see everybody celebrate V-E Day by buying an extra war bond or two, so we can get the whole thing over with in a hurry."

Pvt. Hargett—"Gene," as his buddies call him—was at Bastogne when the Jerries got him in the right leg with six machinegun bullets, shattering his leg up to the hip. He was with the 101st Airborne Infantry when it staved off the fierce German counterattack, and "it was pretty rugged." Incidentally, he buys a $25 bond each month.

"The doctor said he'd have me walking within a year," said the 20-year-old private, looking at the traction which holds his shattered leg in place. "But, shoot, I'll be up before that. I can't spend the rest of my life in bed."

Cpl. William J. Russell, of Royal Oak, Mich., also has definite ideas about war bonds. His old air corps outfit is in New Guinea now, and he knows they've got a big job ahead. Cpl. Russell's neck was broken in a training crash in this country.

"The war is only half over," he pointed out. "We've got to buy twice as many bonds now, because it will be twice as hard defeating Japan."

Pfc. Homer K. Land, of Salisbury, N. C., is also in the orthopedic ward at Lawson General, with a cast on his leg. An infantryman, Land was wounded by a rifle bullet at Berg, Germany, as his outfit pushed toward the Rhine.

"The war isn't over yet, just because Germany is defeated," said Land. "Japan's got to be beat."

May 12 Is Hospital Day

By H. C. NAYLOR, Pres.
Lane Drug Stores, Inc.

Perhaps there is a significance in the fact that Hospital Day falls in the hopeful month of May.

It is a bright and cheerful time and hospital service stands for hope and cheer to the sick.

May 12 is a day to remember. It has been set aside as Hospital Day. Recognition of the fine, scientific service performed by our hospitals is more important now than ever.

We remember with extreme gratitude that all over the nation hospitals are doing a major job in caring for and restoring to health our returned wounded.

We must remember, too, that our "civilian front" still stands in need of special and expert care, afforded by our splendid institutions—the American hospitals. (c)

Unsung Heroes In Tough Spot, Built Up Winning U. S. Army

By ROLFE EDMONDSON.

They've done their bit to help win the war; they've worked hard, both day and night; they've been cursed and discussed, and in some instances, they've been beat up. In fact, they are the unsung heroes of World War II, though they have no medals or ribbons to show for their work, and they have never received a cent of pay for their services.

They entered the service on October 17, 1940, and the vast majority are still in service, but today their work is much lighter than it was when they were first called to arms to fight against aggression, dictators and totalitarianism and to uphold America's great four freedoms, the freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

The act also set up local draft boards, boards to be composed of local citizens, who would pass on each and every individual case. For their services they were to get nothing in the way of remuneration; they have gone unpaid, and in many instances they have been cursed for their fearless rulings—rulings that have sent men into the armed services, instead of leaving him at home to care for those he claimed as dependents, or leaving him on that war job to which he claimed he was essential.

"The President of the United States, having great faith in your integrity and your ability . . . was the way the letters read which went out from the Governor's office to inform local men they had been chosen as draft board officials.

There were 184 such boards named in Georgia, 15 of them in Fulton county, and two in DeKalb county. Under the law, these boards were to meet within 24 hours after they were named, and start the machinery moving. That was long before Pearl Harbor, but at that time, the Luftwaffe was blasting London, Hitler and Mussolini were casting covetous eyes on Romania, and our relations with Japan were strained, and rumors were rife that the Nazi army had failed in an attempt to ferry across the channel and invade England.

"These draft boards were called upon to do plenty of hard work back in those days," S. B. Burroughs, of Draft Board No. 9, at 1000 Peachtree street, said.

"In those days it took hours of work each day. We hardly knew what home life was, for it was up to the boards to set the machinery in motion. All the government furnished us with stationery, desks and typewriters. We had to furnish little things like pens and ink. Each board had one paid clerk, and if the work of the board warranted it, extra clerks could be employed. Some of the boards were large enough to employ two clerks on a fulltime basis. These boards are still operating, and they still have one and two clerks, but the work now has lightened up considerably both on the clerks and the draft board officials.

Tears of Joy, Prayers Sweep Jewish Community Here

End of years of Nazi oppression of the Jews caused tears of joy and prayers of thanksgiving to sweep over the Jewish people of Atlanta.

Religious and business leaders of the Jewish faith hailed the surrender of Germany as the salvation of all humanity, particularly the Jews who have suffered so long, and looked to the San Francisco conference to prevent recurrence of the catastrophe. Liberation of religious prisoners and reassembling of families separated by the war and prison camps will cause the "greatest happiness this side of heaven," Atlanta Jewish leaders joyfully proclaimed.

Dr. David Marx, of the Temple, said, "We are rejoicing at the success of the Allied armies. Never in the history of humanity has there been an equal to the barbarism of the German people. Today marks the overthrow of the worst despotism the world has ever known."

ONLY AN INTERLUDE
Adding that this national joy can only be an interlude, he concluded, "We must pray God for the speedy conclusion of the war in the Pacific. Our one hope lies in the San Francisco conference and the laying of a foundation of real and lasting peace on earth."

"God has answered our prayers," Julian Boehm said in a broken voice. "We should thank God for the relief and the joy of the people who will join their families. The assembling together again of families who have been separated for a long time—the reassembling of fathers, mothers and children who have been separated by the war and its prison camps—this reassembling is a scene of joy that cannot be duplicated this side of heaven. It is a source of joy to American parents, too, when they know that their sons will not be lost in the European battle."

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein declared the surrender of Germany means the salvation of humanity in general as well as for the Jewish people.

REIGN OF BARBARISM
"For the past 12 years the world has been beset by a reign of barbarism such as history has never before recorded," Rabbi Epstein said. "The end of the European phase of the war means liberation in spirit and body of millions of mankind. We cannot help but think that the conference at San Francisco has the added responsibility of formulating a world order and a world peace which shall secure human welfare and peace for all time."

A Methodist Prayer

Eternal God, our Heavenly Father, we would await Thy direction in this creative hour of our world's history. We would not move save in Thy guidance lest the result of our action should be more chaos and not peace. Hence, today, we pause in our trusting places and listen for Thy voice.

We are grateful today that above the confusion of men's voices and the clash of mankind's selfish ways we hear Thy call. Thy cross towers 'o'er the wrecks of time.' We are persistently challenged by the thought that 'One is your Father and all ye are brethren.' May we move into the open door of 'One World.' Stay Thou any form of selfishness that would hinder our progress. Teach us at the council tables what belongs into our peace.

Move, O Father, in the hastening of the cessation of hostilities in the east Cause Thou even the wrath of man to become a black foil revealing Thy truth. While grateful for the vision splendid that has characterized our youth in this fight for freedom, we confess and deplore the sins of the nations that have brought so tragic a harvest. We repent of our own and the sins of others. Comfort the hearts of those who have lost, calm the anxious hearts, receive to Thyself the dying and bring peace in our time, O Lord. Through Jesus Christ. Amen.

PEACE

Jodi is the new chief of staff of the Wehrmacht.

"It was signed for the supreme Allied command—the United States and Britain—by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, known as 'Old Blood and Guts' by Gen. Ivan Susloparov, member of a military mission on the western front, and for France by Gen. Francois Sevez."

Thus to the very end did the Allies deny to the Germans their hope of concluding a separate peace.

"Gen. Eisenhower was not present at the signing," Kennedy said, "but immediately afterward Jodi and his fellow delegate, Gen. Adm. Hans Georg Friedeburg, were received by the supreme commander."

It was Friedeburg, named commander in chief of the German navy after Doenitz took over the falling Third Reich, who negotiated last week the unconditional surrender of 1,000,000 German soldiers in the Pacific, and northwestern Germany.

"They were asked sternly if they understood the surrender terms imposed upon Germany and if they would be carried out by Germany," Kennedy continued.

"They answered 'yes.' 'Germany, which began the war with a ruthless attack upon Poland, followed by successive aggressions and unspeakable brutality in internment camps, surrendered for mercy toward the German people and the armed forces.'"

Kennedy reported Jodi then said he wanted to speak and was given permission to do so.

JODI ON "SUFFERING"
"With this signature," Jodi said softly, "the German people and the armed forces are for better or worse delivered into the victor's hands."

"In this war, which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world."

Shortly after the order was received, Doenitz broadcast from Flensburg an order to all U-boats—approximately 300—to "cease activity," return to port at once.

German Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk then followed to say "the high command of the armed forces today at the order of Grand Adm. Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

The foreign minister declared the terms were "harsh" but unavoidable and urged the Germans to "accept this burden and stand loyally by the obligations we have undertaken."

SEEK FORGIVENESS
"We may hope," he added, "that the atmosphere of hatred which today surrounds Germany all over the world will give place to a spirit of reconciliation among the nations without which the world cannot recover."

Gen. Boehme, German commander in chief in Norway, broadcast last night from Oslo an order commanding his troops to lay down their arms.

Boehme said the surrender order "hits us very hard because we are unprepared and in full possession of our strength in Norway and no enemy has dared to attack us."

NORSE PATRIOTS FREED
Norwegian Patriot prisoners were released from Quisling concentration camps and jails in Norway yesterday as the Norwegians awaited official confirmation of their liberation, a Danish journalist who has been living illegally in Oslo for 10 days advised the Associated Press bureau in London by underground radio.

Meanwhile Sweden announced a break in diplomatic relations with Germany.

Under terms of the capitulation, the Germans will march across the border into internment in Sweden, the Norwegian frontier correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Expressens said.

The Swedish telegraph agency in a broadcast said an Allied naval force of 48 ships had been sighted

Renovated White House Occupied by Trumans

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(UP)—President Truman and his family moved into the newly-decorated White House today. The interior is freshly painted in pastel shades of pink, blue and green selected by Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret.

The family moved from Blair House across Pennsylvania avenue, where they had been living since a few days after the President took office.

They arranged to spend their first night in the executive mansion tonight. Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, will be with them.

The new quarters mean that the President will not be walking to work any more. His early-morning stroll from Blair House had become a daily spectacle for reporters and passers-by.

TODAY

OUR GREAT FIGHT IS ONLY HALF WON

This is the day! The day we've been working and praying and fighting for since December 7th, 1941—Europe since September, 1939. It means the war's half over—our fight half finished—our job half done. But, like the boys in the Pacific, we haven't got time to stop and celebrate. We're on the 50-yard line and we've got the ball. Let's not stop now—not until Japan is in the same spot that Germany is today.

★ PRAY for the Men Who Bought This Day With Their Lives

LET'S FINISH THE FIGHT

HIGH'S

A Jewish Prayer

Father of All Men:
As we offer thanks unto Thee in the hour of victory, may humility of soul not depart from us. In days of trial when men rose up against us, hadst Thou not been on our side, vain had been our hopes.
May we be aware that not by power of armies nor might of armament is victory attained, but by Thine indwelling spirit. We pray that that spirit depart not from us. May it remain with us, even as our beloved ones wage the battle for the emancipation of all Thy children.
Thou hast not failed us in the past. May we not fail Thee in the days that lie ahead.
Spread that mantle of Thy peace over him, who, like Moses of old, passed away within sight of the goal for which he strove but was denied the joy of witnessing the consummation of his work.
May we so think, feel, act and live that Thy glory depart not from us. May we be conscious that Thou desirest us "to do justice, love righteousness and walk in humility before Thee" and in so doing, build a lasting peace for our common humanity—Thy children all. Amen.

AP SUSPENSION

The SHAEF suspension of the AP went into effect at 9:40 a. m., and for many hours it was not even possible to learn how the news had been transmitted.

Shortly before midnight, however, after all but Kennedy had been reinstated, the Associated Press in London filed this account of how Kennedy's story was received and sent to the Allied public:

"The London staff was sweating out the peace news in an atmosphere loaded with rumor, expectancy and cigarette smoke, when one of many telephones on the main news desk rang about 5:24 p. m. London time (8:24 a. m. Atlanta time) and Russell Landstrom looked from his job of herding copy to the cable and radio channels to answer it.

"This is Paris calling," came a faint, muffled voice. Then it faded and came back so Landstrom could catch the word 'Paris' again, and he turned the telephone over to Lewis Hawkins.

ASKS AUTHORITY

"Very dimly the voice said that Germany had surrendered unconditionally at Reims. Hawkins asked who was calling and was told that it was Morton Gudebrod of the Associated Press Paris staff.

"Being unfamiliar with Gudebrod's voice, Hawkins was asking for details and authority when Edward Kennedy, chief of the Paris bureau, burst in to say: 'This is Ed Kennedy, Lew. Germany has surrendered unconditionally. That's official. Make the

FLASH HELD IN NEW YORK
When the bombshell of the flash reached the New York foreign desk, it was held up for eight minutes pending receipt of sufficient of Kennedy's dateline and details of dispatch to make certain that there was no possibility of error. There was none and the news was sped throughout the Allied world at 8:35 a. m.

For four hours afterward, officials in Washington, London and Moscow were silent. Then the British ministry of information announced that Churchill would make a formal V-E proclamation today at 8 a. m. and that King George would speak at 2 p. m.

The British press association reported that "the surprising delay in announcing V-E Day in spite of the complete capitulation by the Germans" was due to the impor-

Dear Sir:

On my return to Atlanta today I find your letter of April 27th. The simple facts are:

1. The Veterans' Rehabilitation Administration has asked that various theatres assist in the teaching of a trade to an honorably discharged veteran.
2. In accordance with that request I sent a letter to you and the other operators in the booth at the Roxy Theatre telling you that the physical facilities our Company owned were available for that purpose—and requested the aid of your organization in teaching an honorably discharged veteran a trade he desired to learn.

It is evident that you, your associates there, and your organization, are not willing to render this cooperation and you dislike for this fact to be known.

Your injection of other matters into the issue is only for confusion. Your inaccuracies and threats do not now concern me.

Yours truly,

W.M. K. JENKINS, President.

'BIG TIME' WILD WITH JOY

New York Shouts Itself Hoarse at Victory News

By TINA RANSOM,
Constitution Staff Writer.

TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK, May 7.—For New York, for the United States, for all the world Times Square is celebrating today the news of Germany's unconditional surrender in accents of the north, south, east and west, in broken English and in foreign tongues.

Voices are raised this victory day in one loud triumphant call, it's meaning clear to all as busy New York policemen stand futilely by with tears streaming down their ruddy faces despite their happy grins.

People throng the streets for blocks. It is hard to tell just where the throng begins and ends. It moves continuously and clusters about nonchalant newspaper photographers; it waves and screams to attract attention of Army and Navy photographers who are perched on the outside ledges of buildings and on built-up ramps in the middle of the streets.

Bits of paper float from skyscraper windows and there is even evidence of hard-to-get confetti in the hair of the men and women.

Toy horns blast, flags wave and the tumult and the shouting goes on without let-up. In fact it seems to get louder and stronger with every minute. The crowd is inexhaustible. No sight is too fantastic. An Indian in full dress with feather streamers saunters along with Atlanta time) this date until charges are investigated in connection with the filing of a story under Reims dateline that SHAEF had officially announced the unconditional surrender of all German forces as of 0241 hours this date.

"(Signed) Frank Allen Jr., brigadier general, U. S. A., director, public relations division."

It must be stated that nowhere in Kennedy's dispatch did he say that the surrender was officially announced.

"OFFICIAL" NOT IN STORY
The flash which moved on the AP circuits in the United States said: "REIMS, France—Allies officially announced Germany surrendered unconditionally."

This was based on the assumption that since the story came from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters in Reims it was official.

The publishable story which Kennedy dictated to London and which was carried was baldly factual, giving no source but letting the event speak for itself. The word "official" did not appear in it.

A little less than seven hours after the suspension of the AP's transmission facilities was put into effect, Austin Bealmeier of the Paris staff was able to file a short story of the celebration of peace in Paris, and informed New York that the suspension had been lifted for all except Kennedy.

Thus the news for which the Allied world had been so eagerly waiting was received. It still was not official, but the Allied world rejoiced in the accomplished fact.

Rome Corporal Missing As Two Bombers Crash

ALEXANDRIA, La., May 7.—(AP)—Two four-engine bombers from the Alexandria Army air field collided Sunday and crashed near Elser Air Field here. It was announced by Col. Quentin T. Quick, commanding officer of the Alexandria air field. Seven men were killed and eleven reported missing.

Both planes were demolished. The accident happened during a combat training flight. A board of Army Air Force officers is to investigate.

The names of the missing and next of kin included Cpl. Joseph R. Cooper, son of Mrs. Mary H. Cooper, Route 1, Rome, Ga.

Award of Medal To FDR Blocked By One GOP

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Action on the posthumous award of the Congressional Medal to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt was blocked in the house today on objection of Rep. Robison, Kentucky Republican.

The Kentuckian said "I object" when the bill came before the house on the unanimous consent calendar, under which one objection causes a piece of legislation to be passed over for later action.

Robison told the body that for almost 100 years the medal had gone only to those "who go far beyond the line of duty in actual combat."

Keep Things Moving, ODT Theme for V-E

Any stoppage in transportation due to celebration of V-E Day will seriously affect vital war and civilian production and distribution, Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, has warned.

Johnson called on all transportation workers, including those employed by railroads, truck and bus lines, airlines, local transit systems and workers engaged in loading and unloading freight to stay on the job and do a full day's work.

"If we lose a day or part of a day in transporting war and civilian products still needed for final victory, we would be playing into the hands of the Japs," Johnson pointed out.

"No more fitting tribute can be paid to the hard-fighting troops in the Pacific than for every man and woman employed in transportation to stay on the job and to dedicate to them their work on V-E Day."

down their arms. The Swedish news agency said an Allied armada of 48 ships had been sighted off Oslo, the Norwegian capital, and was expected to begin landing troops "any minute."

The German Norway garrison was said to have received permission under the surrender terms to march across the Swedish frontier into internment.

Two 10,000-ton German heavy cruisers, the Prinz Eugen and the Seydlitz, together with 160,000 tons of merchant shipping, were reported to have been surrendered to the Allies at Copenhagen. Adm. Doenitz ordered all U-boats to cease operations, telling them "continuation of the struggle is impossible."

A British armored spearhead, occupying Holland, pushed 30 miles through shell-smashed, deserted villages to Utrecht.

Two more German Alpine groups, who had only just heard of the capitulation in the south, surrendered to the Sixth Army group. An estimated 40,000 additional prisoners were taken by the Third Army Sunday. The Seventh and Fifth Armies made another contact in an Alpine pass, 25 miles south of Landeck.

Supreme headquarters noted that 398,000 Germans surrendered Saturday for a three-day total of 887,573 and an aggregate since June 6 of 3,874,771 on the western front.

The Allies apparently no longer considered the hold-out Germans a legal Army under the rules of warfare. A Czech official in London said they would be treated as guerrillas and that the fight would go on until the last one was "rendered harmless, disarmed or killed."

Shortly after midnight the German-controlled Flensburg radio acknowledged that "American forces have reached the area west of Prague."

Flood of Protest Against AP 'Gag' Brings Swift Lifting of News Ban

An avalanche of protests from prominent editors and other nationally-known figures against the SHAEF order suspending filing facilities for news of the Associated Press poured into the White House yesterday. The now lifted ban and the subsequent flood of editorial objections was the result of the AP having "scooped the world" in perhaps the greatest news beat in history—official report of the surrender of the German armies.

Among those who promptly telegraphed President Truman in opposition to SHAEF's tactics were John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, who has just completed a world tour in the interest of press freedom; Roy W. Howard, president of Scripps Howard newspapers; Josephus S. Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer; and many others.

Howard's protest called attention to the fact that Howard sent the famous premature armistice announcement of the last war "and under identical circumstances, I would unhesitatingly repeat."

McGill telegraphed to President Truman at the White House as follows: "Having just returned from a trip around the world in the interest of a free flow of news, I would like respectfully to protest against the suspension of the Associated Press as a news disseminating agency in the European theater. Apparently no security was involved as the German radio had made the announcement of the end of the war in Europe long before the Associated Press news bulletin."

"Already released is the text of congratulations by King George VI to Gen. Eisenhower and the information that beginning tomorrow (Tuesday) England will take two days' holiday in celebration of the end of the war with Germany. I send this wire not as a partisan of the Associated Press but as one interested in the free dissemination of legitimate news. It does not seem wise to punish initiative and, unless there is some explanation to the contrary, this would seem to be the only crime committed by the Associated Press. Respectfully and with admiration."

"RALPH MCGILL."

THE SURRENDER WHICH BROUGHT THE WAR IN EUROPE TO A FORMAL END AFTER FIVE YEARS, EIGHT MONTHS AND SIX DAYS OF BLOODSHED AND DESTRUCTION WAS SIGNED FOR GERMANY BY JOEL JODL, GEN. GUSTAV-JODL.

JOEL IS THE NEW CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

"THAT'S OFFICIAL, GET IT OUT"—With these words from Edward Kennedy at Reims, Associated Press' Lewis Hawkins, of Atlanta, flashed to the world Kennedy's scoop on the surrender from the London bureau. Nettled military authorities stopped the flow of AP news from Europe for several hours after the AP "exclusive."

a cable from Brest which caused a premature celebration of Armistice Day. I was asked to recommend action against Howard. (Roy Howard, of the UP, sent the cable.) I declined, saying that any good newspaperman would have been justified in what Howard did. I can see no justification for suspending the Associated Press. Sincere regards."

Other protests were made by newspaper editors of southern Florida who hastened to send telegrams to President Truman and in prepared editorials.

Knight sent the following telegram to President Truman: "On the principle that the American people are entitled to the fullest coverage of European news, I emphatically protest the reported suspension of Associated Press filing facilities from the European theater of operations."

"This action is in direct conflict with the concurrent resolution adopted by both houses of congress calling for greater freedom of world news. The effect of this restrictive order is to withhold information from that section of our public which depends upon newspaper and radio stations served exclusively by the Associated Press. It should be rescinded at once."

OTHER EDITORS OBJECT
The Miami Daily News and the Miami Herald, both subscribers of the United Press and International News Services, as well as the Associated Press, planned editorials protesting the suspension.

In a telegram to President Truman, the Fort Lauderdale Daily News declared: "Just received a report that Associated Press facilities have been suspended in Paris. I can see no justification for such a move as any good newspaperman would have released such a story. Hope that such order will be rescinded immediately. (Signed) Orville Revelle, editor."

Managing Editor Oscar L. Morris, Salisbury (Md.) Times, telephoned: "Congratulations on the greatest news beat of the war and one of the greatest it ever has been my privilege to see. But we expect that from the Associated Press which also is to be congratulated for sticking by its guns in the face of unreasonable withholding of official news. We are protesting as we know scores of Associated Press members will. It was wonderful reporting and handling."

Said the Miami News, editorially: "One of the most stupid and far-reaching blunders of which our wartime censorship could conceivably be guilty was perpetrated yesterday by SHAEF when it quarantined the Associated Press staff in Europe in resentment against the breaking of the armistice story."

"This is a poor reward for what evidently was one of the most enterprising journalistic jobs of our era—an authentic 'scoop' by Edward J. Kennedy."

"DID PLAIN DUTY"
Pointing out that Kennedy's story went through Allied censorship and that "responsibility for the leak," if such it was, lies not with the correspondent who did his plain duty as a newspaperman but with the censors who failed in their duty to prevent the story from clearing prematurely," the News editorial asked:

"Why apply this general quarantine when the punishment reaches back of the individual involved, back of the organization involved, back even of the totally innocent American newspapers which subscribe to the AP—back all the way to millions of American newspaper readers... who depend heavily for their news on the AP wire service?"

"Somebody has blundered badly. The error is so obvious that we are confident it will be redressed by wiser heads by the time these lines can be published."

"BIGGEST BLUNDER"
James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner and former president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, wired the two Tennessee senators his protest, calling this action "the biggest blunder of the war."

The Stahlman telegram, addressed to Senators K. D. McCellar and Tom Stewart, said: "The unwarranted, unAmerican action of SHAEF in barring the Associated Press from filing anywhere in the European theater is a disgrace to the American concept of a free press. It is the biggest blunder of the war. The war is over. The AP told the story. There was no military security involved. To have waited for the 'official' stamps is the nuts."

"As a member of the Associated Press, I protest vigorously against any such high-handed tactics and request that you do everything in your power to see that the ban on the Associated Press is lifted forthwith. Thanks and regards."

"JIM STAHLMAN."

Victory Comes 2,319 Days After Nazis Invaded Poland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The European war ended today after 2,319 days. Principal dates in the conflict included:

- Sept. 1, 1939—Germans invade Poland.
- Sept. 3—Britain and France declare war.

William Kemp, labor representative on the city personnel board, has begun a two-year term as chairman, following an election of the official personnel for the new year.

Kemp succeeds Aubrey Milam, who has just completed a term as chairman. The third member, James P. Allen, previously served as chairman.

mer Mayor LeCraw named Kemp to succeed him. Harper, too, served as board chairman.

He Planned Carefully

For His Children

- but

Contrary to the law

MAN'S will specified that real estate that he had leased to a retail store be held in trust, income to go to his children. He authorized the trustees to sell or lease the property when the store's lease expired. He provided that when the property was sold, the proceeds should go to his children then living, and to the descendants of the deceased children.

The court held the trust to be invalid, because it might extend longer than the law permits.

Your attorney can tell you how long the law permits property to be held in trust. He can draw a will that will help to make your estate a firm foundation for your family's future. Don't take the chance that a will that you have written yourself will be rejected by the court, which would force a distribution of your estate in a way that might work hardship on your family. Confer with your attorney about this important matter, today.

PRAYERS ASCEND

Churches Filled With Thankful

The end of the European phase in the greatest conflict the world has ever known was celebrated in Atlanta by thousands who went to church with humility and thanksgiving in their hearts to thank the Almighty for His mercies and to pray to Him for total peace to replace global war.

Jubilant, of course, but still mindful of the hard fight ahead, they went to their own churches to sing hymns of praise and to bow their heads in thankfulness for the end of fighting in bitter European cold, but they were sobered by thoughts of fighting to come in steaming Pacific jungles. Victory in Germany brought many downtown Atlanta workers to churches near the business areas at noon. A number of Atlanta churches awaited official confirmation of the glorious news before holding their special services, planned many days before. Some announced late yesterday afternoon that they would hold their V-E programs today.

CHRISTIAN ACTION NOW

Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, president of the Atlanta Christian Council, issued a statement on behalf of the organization yesterday afternoon. It follows:

"The coming of V-E Day brings unspeakable joy to countless millions in both hemispheres. We are never entirely conscious of great tension until it is relaxed. Then it is only natural that some expression be given to emotions long pent up. We have a great opportunity to show our gratitude to Almighty God by a sane Christian celebration.

"At the same time we must remember that 'Earth by power shows like God's when mercy seasons justice.' The atrocities of our enemies must not be allowed to provoke any atrocities on the part of the victors. You cannot defeat the devil by acting like the devil. If the teachings of Christ are ever to be a controlling influence in the world, there is no better time than now to put them into action."

COLLEGE PARK PRAYS

College Park citizens joined together at the municipal auditorium in community thanksgiving services, conducted by the Revs. O'Keefe Fitzgerald and R. C. Cleckler, Methodist; the Revs. James L. Baggett, Toombs McGaughey, R. W. Justice, Baptist; the Rev. C. E. Piephoff, Presbyterian; the Rev. J. N. Malone, Episcopal.

All radio stations were planning special religious broadcasts by pastors in the city as soon as confirmation came. Dr. Robert Burns was in charge of the Christian Council's radio committee.

Dr. Louis D. Newton held a service last night at Druid Hills Baptist church. He will conduct another, which will be broadcast, at 12:30 p. m. today.

Rabbi Joseph Cohen announced special V-E service at 8 o'clock tonight at Congregation of Veshalom, 240 Central avenue.

Dr. Ferguson Wood has announced a special service for 8 o'clock tonight at Westminster Presbyterian church.

The Allies can be thrown against Japan. All recognized that there is a long, hard fight ahead.

Radio Tokyo quoted Gen. Jiro Minami, head of Japan's totalitarian party, as declaring the Nazi collapse left Nippon with nothing "to think about but how to win" the Pacific war.

TOKYO FEARS REDS

Tokyo, jittery about Russia's position, spoke of maintaining "absolute neutrality with the Soviet Union."

The Chinese high command indirectly indicated development of what might prove to be a serious threat to the American air base at Chihkiang, in China's Hunan province, 250 miles from Chungking. It said a Japanese column broke through "southeast of Ankiang." The latter town is on the main highway, 35 miles east of Chihkiang.

The communists said the entire Japanese left wing in the Wawutang sector, 56 miles southeast of Chihkiang, was "totally shattered."

3,000 'Quislings' Seized in Denmark

COPENHAGEN, May 7.—(P)—Wholesale seizure of Danish collaborators was reported today as Christmas Moeller, the new foreign minister of Denmark, arrived in Copenhagen by plane from London.

Correspondents estimated 3,000 collaborators have been arrested throughout Denmark, and only a few of them have been released after examination.

Stockholm dispatches told of fighting between Danish Patriots and Germans or Danish Nazis in Copenhagen in which 83 persons have been killed since Friday and 643 wounded. The dispatch said it was estimated 150 have been killed in such fighting in all Denmark.

Calvert appeared before U. S. Commissioner David J. Meyer, hardy yesterday afternoon and posted $1,000 bond, returnable June 4.

The grand jury jointly indicted Calvert and Calvert Iron Works, Inc., of which he is president, charging the defendants with willfully embezzling 19 I-beams entrusted to them by the Navy Department. The indictment further charges that the defendants converted the stolen iron to their own use, without the consent of the United States.

In a statement to The Constitution, Calvert pointed out that Calvert Iron Works has "successfully executed several large contracts for the Navy. It has handled approximately a million dollars' worth of material furnished by the Navy, and has accounted for all such material," he said.

ACCUSATION

"The company and I now stand accused in an indictment obtained without any testimony from the Navy Department," Calvert charged, "of the theft of some $900 worth of steel beams."

Calvert quoted a letter from the Navy Department, which "best answers" the indictment against him:

"The inspector wishes to state that the Calvert Iron Works, Inc., were most co-operative with this office in planning their manufacturing schedules and in working extra shifts in order to meet delivery requirements.

Calvert Charged With Theft in U. S. Indictment

Robert A. Calvert, Atlanta industrialist and civic leader, was indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury on charges of stealing $900 worth of iron beams from the Navy.

Calvert appeared before U. S. Commissioner David J. Meyer, hardy yesterday afternoon and posted $1,000 bond, returnable June 4.

A Day of Victory--And Rededication

Germany has surrendered.
Victory has come in Europe.

Adolf Hitler's dreams of world conquest—dreams which once came close to fulfillment—are at an end.

The menace of military Nazism has been stamped out, the threat of a new world order—ruthlessly ruled by German "supermen"—is no more. There remains to be won the fight to eliminate the rank weeds of Nazi philosophy which took root in our first nations.

Our first reaction is, quite naturally, one of elation, of triumph, of jubilant celebration, even though the official news comes as an anticlimax.

Never, of course, have we had any doubt of ultimate victory. From the first we have placed the utmost confidence in the valor of our men, the superiority of our arms, the righteousness of the cause for which we fought. Even in those dark days after the treacherous sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, when Nazi U-boats were prowling unmolested off our eastern shores, our faith never wavered.

Since that magnificent June 6 last year when our forces invaded the beaches of Normandy, it has become increasingly apparent that victory was inevitable, that—crushed between the resurgent Russian armies on the east and the British, Canadian and American forces on the west—the vaunted German wehrmacht could only hope to prolong, but never to win, the war.

The great amphibious operation which resulted in the breaching of Hitler's Festung Europa was the beginning of the end for Nazism. From that day to this the Third Reich has undergone its death throes. Relentlessly, from all sides, the foes of Hitlerism have closed in on the nation which has been a festering cancer in the body of civilization.

Nevertheless, as certain as we were of the eventual triumph of our fighting forces, there is a sheer exhilaration in the knowledge that victory is now an accomplished fact, that no more American boys will be called upon to lay down their lives in an effort to stifle the Nazi menace. This is a joyous day for free men everywhere, a proud and happy one.

Meanwhile, we must not forget, in our triumph, that we have an undischarged obligation to those who died to make this day possible, an obligation to continue the all-out fight against our other foe, an obligation to see to it that a worldwide peace structure is set up to insure that they have not died in vain.

There will be a tendency, now that Germany is out of the war, to let up in our war effort. There will be pressures brought to eliminate wartime restrictions. Too many people still consider the Japanese war a minor-league fray, one which can be ended without straining.

There is not the slightest reason for such wishful thinking. The Japanese is a fanatical foe. He is entrenched on the Chinese mainland. We have made remarkable progress on the long road back, yes, but there is no evidence of weakening Japanese resistance, nothing to indicate that we won't literally have to eliminate them from the face of the earth before ever they cease fighting. The Pacific theater of conflict is thousands of miles away, presenting immeasurable difficulties of ordnance and supply. Many pockets of resistance remain to be eliminated along our island-hopping route. At least three months must pass before we can shift our strength from the Atlantic to the Pacific and throw its weight against the Japanese army—which army we have not yet met in force. The Japanese war, in short, is still far, far from over.

Because we are anxious to bring it to an end as speedily as possible, because we are determined to avenge the barbaric indignities which the Japs have visited upon Americans unfortunate enough to fall into their hands, and because none of us can enjoy any real peace until the last shot has been fired and the last of our brave men returned home, we must turn, with renewed energy, to the prosecution of our remaining war.

Germany has quit.

That is cause for rejoicing.

But Japan has not.

That is reason for continued striving, for rededication of our efforts to the task at hand. There are bonds to buy, sacrifices to make, prayers to be said, work to do.

We have known the hell of total war. Let us work for the blessings of total peace.

Unconditional Surrender--Another Victory

If, as The Book says, there is understanding and complete knowledge of all things in the world to which all of us must travel through the door marked "Death," then we may expect one of the thinner, more weary shades in eternity to be a little more content today.

One of the little things on which the opposition to Franklin D. Roosevelt seized was his insistence on "unconditional surrender" by Germany and Japan. Showing a lamentable lack of knowledge of history, especially of a well-known character known as Ulysses S. Grant, these small critics said there couldn't be any such thing as an unconditional surrender; that it delayed the war, and so on. But Franklin D. Roosevelt knew, as did our generals, that in this war the defeat of the enemy had to be complete and that he must surrender unconditionally. Germany now has no claim left, as she had before, that she was "stabbed in the back," that she was tricked and betrayed. Evil has had to sign on the dotted line, without conditional escape.

We will now move on to Japan. The terms of unconditional surrender weaken, not strengthen, the foe. Evil had grown so bold and so successful it felt it could compromise in defeat as it had used compromise and appeasement to win victories. When history writes its verdict of Franklin D. Roosevelt and of this country in the war it will write highest the fact that our moral concept of the war was that surrender must be unconditional.

Peace

Editor Constitution:

Think not that the war is over
When the guns of battle cease;
Though the tyrants' hold be broken,

We must fight to win the peace.
We must plan and work together;
There's a task for each to do;
War has wrought its mad destruction,
We must build our world anew.

Let the building not be futile;
Peace can never truly be
Till the Love of God is planted
In the hearts of you and me;
Nations of the world, united,
Let us work and pray and plan,
Toward the peace that God has promised
Through the brotherhood of man.

For Real Men

Editor Constitution: In today's issue of The Washington Post we were disgustedly shocked at the following item: "Have you heard the one about the Atlanta high school boys who are taking period side rinses because the girls down there prefer blonds? What's the world coming to, anyhow?" Are these the sissy jerks that are keeping company with our girls while we are away in the service? If this report is true, we would suggest some reforming before the Georgia servicemen get home. Yours for real men in our shoes down there.

Clear-Cut, Concise

Editor Constitution: Feel constrained to add my mite of praise and gratitude that we still have a free press and an opportunity to read from the clear-cut and concise pen of Westbrook Pegler. When I read first of recent articles from his gifted pen in Monday's issue, I wept for joy.

I invariably clip his column—send to my sons—who I fear never saw his letters—yet they grew up in very indifference to politics or the intricacies of government. But long in the later thirties—or the midst of the New Deal—my sons said, "If this is democracy, give me something else."

Send 'Em Overseas

Editor Constitution: Now that Germany is practically defeated, many are worrying as to whether or not their menfolk will have to remain there in the Army of Occupation.

Everyone I have spoken to agrees with me in thinking that the officers who have been stationed in the States all during the war should be sent overseas now to occupy Germany. Why should they remain at home, working in offices, having all advantages, while others have risked their lives on the battlefields?

Bring home those overseas and put them in the office jobs these men now hold, and send the warmers overseas. Let them find out what it is like to really be in the Army.

Evil Almost Took Us All in Back in 1939

I went back and took a look at the files. Not that I didn't remember—I did. I will never forget that day when we all came hurrying to the office. The Germans had gone singing, and killing, into Poland. That had been Sept. 1, 1939. On Sept. 3 a tired, uncomprehending old man, Neville Chamberlain, had read the declaration of war against Germany. An even more reluctant France had joined.

Chamberlain's words seemed tired and disillusioned even when the news agency tickers brought them in. On the air they had been bleak and sad. Chamberlain knew even then the depths of his failure. He had been uncomfortable all along, knowing he had tried to win evil. The Czechs were on his mind. And conscience. They were on the minds and consciences of almost every decent person in the world. And Neville Chamberlain was decent. He simply had no vision. He was living in another age. He could not comprehend the German philosophy, and he was by no means alone. He could not realize that stark, naked evil was abroad glorying in its evilness. Evil had taken him in.

He had been getting tired for a long time. I recall that he looked tired and was petulant in the days when I saw his tall form wince and twist during the debates on Loyalist Spain and the Franco Fascists who were being aided by Italy and Germany. He knew that wasn't honest, but he was following the theory of that day, which was that you could feed the mad dogs and make them gentle. They laughed at him in Berchtesgaden and in Rome. Mussolini and Hitler slapped their uniformed knees and roared. He so epitomized what they had been saying—that the democracies were decadent and corrupt—that England was too selfish to fight and America too greedy to help her if she did.

All that had gone before that Sept. 3 when the swift panzers were rolling across the Polish plains and the Luftwaffe was flying practically unopposed.

We Were Saying— I remember something else, too. I remember what people were saying back in 1938 and 1939. I had heard them in England and France. And, coming home in the summer of 1938 at the time of Munich, I heard them in this country—

"Well, that guy Hitler has got something—he has got something on the ball. . . . You know, there is something in what he says. . . . I don't guess he is as bad as he is painted. . . . You know how the English are. . . . They have taken enough in their time. . . . Who cares about the Czechs, anyhow? . . . Why should we worry about what Germany wants? . . . It's just the Jews. . . . It doesn't concern us. . . . You know how it is. . . . It's all propaganda. . . . He ain't so bad. . . . Why shouldn't Germany have that corridor? . . . Sometimes I think we need Hitler in this country. . . . He sure can speak. . . . Maybe he has got something. . . ."

I remember them now on bus and train, in plane and office, in street and home.

All the while Evil was blinding the world. Evil was saying that all Evil wanted was the Polish corridor. Evil was saying that if she could but have the Sudetan land in Czechoslovakia she would be content. Evil was asking for a little more each time. And all the while Evil was huffing and puffing at the little straw houses of fear and appeasement which many nations had built, blowing them down and eating up the fat little pigs.

There was hardly a house in the world that didn't have a lot of straw in it and some sand under the foundations. But there was enough real stuff left to fight. Even that was in the distance that day on September 3 when war was declared. There were to be many weeks of the "phony war" when evil slowly but surely waited while her termites ate away the sound wood in the foundations of France. It didn't take long. There wasn't much sound wood.

The End Came Yesterday the end came. Evil, long exposed, had to come forward and sign complete capitulation. A lot of brave men have salted the desert sands with their bones; have given their bodies to the jungle and the plain.

But evil has been defeated. Evil, and the land of evil, have felt the weight of war and had enough.

The wind of war and the rain of evil have blown the seeds of evil to many lands. They are flowering there. We will have to spray them with the killing acids of truth.

It was to be a long war. People said we would be in it for 10 years—for 20 years. And when Japan came in—it might last a lifetime.

It won't. Japan should be finished when we have had time to move our men and equipment from the Atlantic and Europe to the Pacific. Eight months should do the job after we get equipment and men there.

It has been a glorious, heart-warming, but expensive job. It will continue to be expensive.

When Japan has surrendered unconditionally, as she must, we must then decide how long the war will last. It will last just so long as we let those weeds of Nazi philosophy grow in the places where the winds of the world have blown them.

RALPH T. JONES

Democracies Must Be Based on Truth

The principal means by which Adolf Hitler became dictator of Germany was the deliberate, studied use of the lie. He brags about it himself, in Mein Kampf.

He had ready to his hand, a nation impregnated with the disease of militarism. He had a nation which, even though falsely, believed itself to have been ill-used in the Treaty of Versailles.

He seized control of the radio, the press, education, and proceeded to feed Germany a mental diet carefully worked out to make the German people all beasts of prey.

Whether or not the free world can ever cure Germany of the foul disease which is the result of Hitler and the innate national militarism, is a question which cannot be answered for many years to come. Perhaps, and perhaps not. One thing is certain, the only way in which Germany can be restrained for many, many years is by the rigid use of force. She must be an occupied country, a country deprived of all means, industrial and economic, of building a new war machine. The lie must be constantly stamped out every seed of reviving German militarism, before it has a chance to sprout.

But physical force is not enough. We would be utterly blind if we did not envisage a day, even though centuries ahead, when Germany will be cured of the mental and mental disease in which she is now sunk and be made fit to associate with other nations on equal footing.

And to do this we must make our own economic and moral strength sufficient to set example which even Germans cannot fail to observe and seek to emulate.

We can do this only by living, internationally, nationally and individually, the truth. Truth must be the mental diet which leads the world away from the crime of war, just as lies were the mental diet which led Germany in the horror she has become. Dictatorships can only be created on lies. Democracies must be based on truth.

Imperialism Must Go The German theory of the super-race is closely akin to imperialism, that old national evil of which every great power has been guilty sometime in its history.

The French, the Dutch, the British, the United States have all been guilty of imperialism. If you doubt it about the United States, what other name can you give to the treatment of the Indians? How account for the reputation this country had, until comparatively recently, among our neighbors of Central and South America?

Fortunately for the United States we found territory to acquire on our own continent. We did not expand in spots all over the world. We did not have to face, except in minor instances such as the Philippines, the terrible problem of the "white man's burden," which has been so heavy on both France and Britain. We have no vast populations to protect from themselves, as the British have in India.

But we, as other nations, must renounce the whole idea of exploitations of peoples, whether those peoples are of some other land or race, or whether they are groups within our own borders.

The Dignity of Man It all comes back to the basic truth that every man, regardless of nationality or race, is an entity entitled to freedom and recognition of his individual dignity—until his own acts make him unworthy. It is evil denial of the basic dignity of man when any power, national or economic, uses its power to exploit humanity.

Germany, as a nation, has lost the basic right to human dignity. It has become so diseased spiritually and mentally, diseased because of the diet of lies, on top of its old evil of militaristic pride, that only great faith can believe the day will come when the world German will denote an acceptable neighbor or friend, instead of a creature to be distrusted and confined.

How long it will take to remake the German character, no man can guess. There are the millions of young Germans, boys and girls, who have been fed no mental food save falsehood from birth. Truth is powerful and, ultimately, will come. But the task that faces truth in Germany today is so staggering it would be hopeless, without the inherent faith in the power of truth to prevail.

Democracy, we know, is the only right way of social order. But democracy must be based upon truth, or it in turn will fail. Let us then be alert to purge our democracy of all things false so that we may make it strong. And through truth let us keep the United Nations united. Only so can we save our civilization from the world suicide which is inevitable unless we forever halt the gangsterism called aggressive war.

Let Hirohito Keep His Job?

As this is written, President Truman has not yet told us what peace terms he will impose on the Japanese, or what method of managing Japan he believes most wise.

It is probable that he will follow the advice of men more familiar with foreign affairs. And it is reported that some of these men, who have authority and influence, have already agreed upon a plan to approve the "emperor system" and keep Hirohito in his job. Former Ambassador Grew says this would have a "stabilizing influence."

It would, indeed. It would stabilize and perpetuate the sun-god hoax that has made the Japs a race of fanatic killers, lusty to conquer the world and convert it with fire and sword as the followers of Mohammed did.

It is not an exaggeration to say that every boy who dies fighting the Japs is sacrificed to that hoax; for without a god-emperor to fight and die for the Japs could never have been tricked into such a mad adventure. (It was another mad-god hoax that changed so many German boys into murderous fanatics.)

Many Americans can remember the beginning of the sun-god fraud. The able father of Hirohito, who made Japan a modern nation during his half-century reign, was not regarded as a god, nor were those who reigned before him. Most of them, in fact, were figureheads, outranked by the shoguns; and not one of them had authority over the whole nation.

Jap politicians invented the god-emperor idea, with the unbroken line of divine ancestors leading back to a mythical god in the skies, and taught it to the people for the sole purpose of making them easier to handle.

It worked better than they could have hoped. The highly educated do not believe it, but the people swallow it whole. They believe Hirohito a true divinity. They kill themselves if by accident they look down upon him from a second-story window as he rides by. Heaven is their certain reward if they die for him.

To support that monstrous idea will make us an accessory to the fraud. It may preserve order and make Japan easier to deal with, but it will also insure the continued dominance of the ruling class; keep the people in subjection; and enable the militarists to train another generation for conquest.

What does temporary defeat mean to people who know they are serving a god?

Beaten Germans might be more stable and easier to manage with Hitler left in charge, but would that justify our support of his evil system?

In Japan, as in Germany, we will fail to tear down the structure of Fascism unless we destroy the foundation on which it was built.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

(Lowndes County News)

Governor Arnall has said repeatedly that he is not seeking a second term as Governor of Georgia. Georgians have one of two choices. If they draft Arnall to serve a second term there is not likely to be any opposition. If he steadfastly refuses to be drafted then this state will be torn by the greatest number of factions and candidates for governor at the next primary seen for many decades.

We are of the opinion that our present governor should be pressured into a second term. His service to the state so far in his administration has wrought wonders and it remains to be seen what additional service he can render without the restrictions of war.

Now We Can Get On With the War

The war in Europe is officially over: They finally got Stalin to answer the phone.

Not that Joe wasn't anxious to hear the good news. He just didn't like the idea of them reversing the charges.

The Germans surrendered unconditionally. But not unhesitatingly. It was a piecemeal peace.

It was beginning to look as if the peace negotiations were going to continue until the Nazis could raise another crop of Wehrmacht.

At that, it was a typically American victory: On the installment plan.

But, as many holidays as we already have, it will be hard taking a week off each May to celebrate the days the Germans surrendered.

Incidentally, there was a lot of confusion yesterday: People didn't know whether Germany had laid down the gun or AP had jumped it.

May seventh will go down as V-E Day in the memory of the other press associations . . . V-E—Very Embarrassed.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Today's Celebration Is Anti-Climactic

WASHINGTON—After one false report and yesterday's premature announcement, V-E day, when it finally is officially declared—today for a certainty, it now seems—will come as very much of an anti-climax.

In Washington as well as elsewhere over the nation—throughout the world, also, for that matter, perhaps—there was a distinct let-down feeling over the events of the day.

Thousands upon thousands of people who set out to engage in a day of celebration after the flash came through of Germany's unconditional surrender had their spirits dampened for the second time in little more than a week when government sources both here and in London refused to give official confirmation to the long-awaited development.

What the effect of the two such disappointments will be when the final official announcement is made is a matter of conjecture. We can only wait and see. It seems safe to say, however, that there will still be enough enthusiasm left in the American people to blow the lid off when the Allied government heads see fit to release officially the momentous and history-making events which are assumed to have taken place already.

No one doubted the authenticity of the first news reports sent by the AP from supreme Allied headquarters in France yesterday on the German surrender. The reports were borne out by other announcements regarding the surrender made by the Germans themselves.

Moreover, the reports had the effect of receiving official British and American confirmation by the announcements from London and Washington that heads of the two Allied governments will proclaim V-E Day today, with simultaneous statements to be issued by President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

Technical reasons are best assigned to the failure of the Allied governments to confirm the surrender news. It had been previously agreed, perhaps at Yalta, for the three big powers to make the announcement jointly when it came. Considering that there is a difference of about 10 hours in the time at Moscow and in Washington, the most likely explanation made of the delay is that there was not sufficient time for Moscow to join with London and Washington in making the arrangements incident to the announcement.

But whatever the reasons, there is every justification for the assumption that today—May 8—will witness the official proclamation of V-E Day. It may certify May 6 as the actual date of German capitulation, but the day of celebration promises to be today.

Washington officials, while piqued over the premature announcement of the surrender, will nevertheless be pleased if V-E Day does come as something of an anti-climax. Ever since the collapse of Germany became imminent officials here have sought to hold the American people back from celebrating in a way that might cause a let-down in our national effort until both wars are ended.

If officials had their way, no great celebration would take place until Japan, too, has acceded to the unconditional surrender terms laid down by the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. The collapse of Germany is only the first step in this direction.

Officials are afraid there may be too much of a tendency on the part of the people to regard the war as over, with thousands of war workers prompted to return to their homes and other upheavals in our domestic economy that might delay the date of final victory in the Pacific.

And so if the awaited V-E Day celebration loses some of its enthusiasm because of the two earlier false alarms officials here will be none too displeased. It is felt that there will still be time for the grand celebration when Japan is finally forced to lay down her arms.

In the meantime, the nation can look forward expectantly to the epoch-making developments of today. Our enthusiasm may have lost some of its spontaneity by the premature release of the news, but when it does come officially it will lose nothing in world importance.

VE-DAY

Inexorable hands of time are fixed upon the hour. Hope falls the devotees who bowed to pagan gods of power. Their idols crumble in the dust, their pirate flag is furling. They join the legions of the damned who sought to rule the world; The bony fingers beckon them where stands the special wrath. Their lances break, their swords are dulled against the shield of Faith.

Beyond the mind's horizon, in some dim and distant land, Are mysteries we cannot grasp; can never understand... The hand Omnipotent that tips the balance in the scale... The spirit bursting into flame when bone and sinew fall... The sun of hope that shines to turn the sable night to dawn... Sustaining strength that comes to us when other strength has gone.

No stone that formed the fortress wall to guard the master-race, Fixed in the mortar of their lust, is standing in its place... You, once enslaved, march proudly through their hingeless prison door,

Go forth and build a better world than we have known before!

Postwar and the Middle East

JERUSALEM—It may seem strange that any journalist at the climax of events in Europe, where one sensation follows another, should choose to turn to the Middle East, but it has been my practice to try to anticipate rather than to follow events.

This war has been the most shattering experience in human history. Victory of the Allied powers promises no return to the comfortable former state of affairs either in terms of organization of human society or distribution of world power. From a long view the most important single fact of the war is the emergence of the Soviet Union as the undisputed premier power of the whole Eurasian mainland.

In 1919 the eminent British geographer, Sir Halford Makinder, projected the concept that the Eurasian continent reaching from the English channel is an uninterrupted mass of land while Vladivostok and the Pacific containing the overwhelming mass of all humanity had its heartland in the area where Russia borders Europe and that he who is uniquely all-powerful between the Rhine and the Urals can be master of the globe.

This concept, taken over by the German Haushofer, was the basic theory of the now shattered German general staff led by him. The dictum of Hitler, shared by Von Runstedt, was that the British empire could be defeated only in collaboration with Russia. But this military geopolitical theory also had been the gospel of the Russian general staff who may have imbibed it from the Germans during the twenties when there was closest collaboration between the Reichswehr and the Red army.

Knocking out Germany now leaves the Soviet Union without rival or balance of power on the Eurasian mainland. There actually is but one formidable power left in the world's greatest continuous area. The Soviet recognition of this fact is obvious in its all but contemptuous treatment of the British and American protests over Poland and the repercussions of that fact resound through the Middle East, where collapse of the Ottoman Turkish empire under British arms and revolutionary political influence on the Arab world left us the natural successor to the Arabian states: Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Transjordan, Egypt and Palestine. Conquest of this world by military might or political absorption is inevitable in the program. To anyone who would be world master, as Caesar, Napoleon and Hitler all knew, as the Kaiser knew with his Berlin-Baghdad plan, the maintenance of the friendliest relations with this world is essential. To any world power or world equilibrium it is absolutely essential. As for Britain, the moment she loses influence in this area her world power is gone, for not only is it almost the sole source of British oil, but it is a part of the infinitely larger Moslem world, including millions of Indians, and lies across her most critical line of communications. In the free world comparable with the spirit of western institutions, the Atlantic charter should have some form of federal union for Arabian states. They are desirable as co-operating members of a world organization where mutual security is guaranteed and wherein they find room for a Jewish homeland.

But whatever the great powers say in San Francisco, here in the Holyland the three religions see a scarcely veiled struggle between the ways of life in the Near East and the concepts of the world organization in the Western Hemisphere—the manifold, democratic, freedom-loving eastern countries not embarking from her unprecedented military political position upon a course of world domination? And what will be the role of the United States?

WAVE OF JOY

Allied Capitals Hail News

By The Associated Press.

The great bells of St. Peter's basilica rang out over Rome yesterday soon after the Associated Press reported that peace had come to Europe, while several Allied capitals proclaimed V-E holidays for today and Tokyo announced continuation of "this sacred war."

Many of the world's cities went wild at the news, and even neutral capitals were bedecked with flags and filled with celebrating crowds. Canada proclaimed today a holiday.

Masses of people gathered in front of loudspeakers and newspaper offices which were frantically answering inquiries and rolling out extras.

Only in the unnatural calm of the European fronts was the news reported to have been taken soberly by soldiers who had seen the fighting taper off in one sector after another for the last two weeks.

No word came from Moscow on V-E plans.

In Paris, which lived through four years of German occupation to become a base for Supreme Allied Headquarters, the French government announced a two-day holiday starting V-E Day, presumably today. France had special cause for satisfaction in having staged a comeback and won the right to share in accepting Germany's surrender after it had once been beaten into signing an armistice with Hitler in June, 1940.

In Italy, which broke the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis by surrendering and joining the war against Germany, hundreds of other churches in the Eternal City joined St. Peter's in ringing out the news, and air raid sirens, silent since the last raid of Allied planes last June, sounded again for 10 minutes of jubilation.

Sweden forgot her neutrality and celebrated wildly.

Jerusalem's flag-bedecked streets filled with crowds congratulating each other in English, Hebrew and Arabic, and for the first time since the coronation of King George VI of England, David's tower and the old city walls will be floodlighted tonight.

Premier Per Albin Hansson, of Sweden, which twined its history with the world's peace, proclaimed to his parliament yesterday that "a nightmare has been lifted." This was followed by the greatest street demonstration in Stockholm's history by usually staid burghers wild with joy.

Spain broke off relations with Germany yesterday and ordered German property in the country turned over to it by 1 p. m. today.

Belgians hung out flags hidden through years of German occupation and ordered official V-E Day to be celebrated.

In contrast, Nazi-puppet Premier Vidkun Quisling, of Norway, appealed in a broadcast for "dignified behavior by refraining from hasty actions which may endanger the public order and security" in "this difficult situation."

The Tokyo radio grimly broadcast a speech yesterday by Gen. Jiro Minami, head of Japan's new totalitarian party, appealing that "the way to cope with the international situation, which has made a turn as a result of the German surrender, is to win through this war" and that Japan never had "the slightest intention of relying on Germany."

Japan's Domei agency said officials took the surrender as "one of the most important developments that have taken place in many years on Japan's diplomatic front" and that Tokyo "reserved the freedom to re-examine all her relations with Germany" where the Reich's official surrender announcement yesterday had spoken of a new Germany which would "link" with "the Christian western civilization."

In Latin America, Colombia and Costa Rica led in declaring two-day holidays yesterday as the first United Nations countries officially to recognize the end of the war. The world's first official national celebration was at Costa Rica, where a 21-gun salvo was fired and Allied diplomatic envoys spoke over the radio as crowds danced in the public squares.

At the Vatican it was reported Pope Pius XI received the news with deep emotion, but there was no indication he would broadcast tomorrow. The Vatican radio included the news in all its broadcasts; following it with religious hymns of jubilation.

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—News of Germany's surrender spread like wildfire in Wall Street today and set off an all-morning celebration by jubilant downtown workers who left their jobs.

Thousands of hatless and coatless stenographers and clerks began to jam the narrow streets in the financial sector within half an hour after word of the capitulation arrived from Reims, France.

Amid streaming ticker tape, scraps of paper and confetti, the cheering throngs celebrated until shortly after the lunch hour. Activity then diminished and street sweepers were busy cleaning up the mess when the Stock Exchange closed at 3 p. m. (EWT).

Emil Schram, president of the Exchange, said a two-minute period of silence would be observed on the trading floor when President Truman officially announces the arrival of V-E Day.

An official British statement that the announcement would come at 9 a. m. (EWT) tomorrow caused Exchange officials to plan tentatively to observe the silence after the opening at 10 a. m. EWT.

The Stock Exchange plans to operate as usual Tuesday. Trading on the New York Curb Exchange was suspended for five minutes at 10:15 a. m. (EWT) today in observance of German surrender. The London stock market took the news calmly and dealings continued. In Toronto the exchange closed after 35 minutes of trading with the announcement it would not reopen until Wednesday morning.

It Won't Be Over Until They're Home

THOMASTON—V-E or not V-E, that was the question. Like every small town in Georgia, Thomaston was a state of utter confusion and determination not to celebrate until the proper time for celebration arrived—but was not this the time?

Neighbors who had agreed weeks ago to telephone one another at the first moment of the great news ran to their phones and left breakfast burning on the stove. It was 8:30 CWT in Thomaston when that first (P) flash was read over the wires. "Blast the breakfast, I've got to hear the bulletins," cried housewives in defiance of all the warnings from Washington. Washington could be calm and go on working if it wanted to; but, after all, Washington was not a southern town.

Merchants did not know whether to close their shops or not. Was it true, at last? There had been so many false rumors, so many disappointments. On Main street stood a private first class, home on furlough after almost three years overseas. Amusement lighted his face as he watched the emotional civilians. "What makes 'em think the war is over?" he asked. "Sure, I heard that announcement over the radio, but I don't believe a thing I hear, or what I see. Private Wilbur E. Wusley had been in the African invasion and after that he'd been in Italy with the 198th Division M. P. He has to report back to Atlanta, and may return to Africa or be sent to the Pacific. He doesn't know."

In the drugstore harried proprietors tried to listen to the radios as they waited on confused customers. "I'm not going to close tomorrow even if it is V-E Day," declared Red McClellan, but his clerks had other ideas. "Maybe not," laughed one of them, "but you won't have any help if you stay open."

Two Negro women walked slowly past, their eyes on the bright gadgets in a dime-store window. Their clean, flowered muslin dresses were untroubled, their movements as leisurely as if there had never been a war anywhere. "What do you think of the news, Auntie?" I asked the older to see if she could be stirred out of her lethargy.

"News?" both repeated. "Don't you know that Germany has surrendered?"

"Is?"

"Yes, the President hasn't announced it, but it's true. Have any sons or relatives in the war?"

"My brother has got some boys in it."

"In Germany?"

"I don't know, Miss; all I know is, they are overseas."

At a drugstore store the radio was blaring out an account of the celebration in Times Square, and you could hear the hysterical shouts of happy holiday-makers. Mrs. Klein, the proprietor's wife, spoke scornfully. "They'd celebrate in New York even if they didn't have anything to celebrate."

The president of the local merchants' association, Alvin Lyons, was waiting for an official announcement. "Everybody has been dashing in for a supply of food, and they are so excited we can hardly wait on them. We'll probably close tomorrow, though I wouldn't if we were engaged in war production. It's mighty fine, the news is. We will stop just long enough to catch our breaths before going on with the war in the Pacific."

But it was the fathers and mothers of boys now in Germany who were the most moved. "When would the boys be coming home?"

"My son, Mansel—Lt. Mansel Davison," said Mr. Pack Davison, of the Thomaston Cotton Mills office force, "is with Simpson's Ninth Army now, the 30th Division. They had a presidential citation, you know, for the work they did at Saint Lo when they prepared for Patton's breakthrough. Mansel has been in service over three years. He has received the Silver Star. I hope he'll come home soon."

There's a young girl, Mrs. David Wurst, whose husband, Lt. Wurst, has been a prisoner of war for over two years, and every day Alice passes our house on her way to the post office. She believes that he was liberated last week at Neuburg in Austria. This morning Alice went to the postoffice as usual, rolling Cheney along in the pram. Cheney has never seen her father.

The Thomaston Times was not planning to get out an extra, much to my disappointment, but Billy Burson, a reporter, stated that students at R. E. Lee High

ERNEST K. LINDLEY

It Was a Great Team That Won Victory

As the greatest military campaign in the history of the American army is officially ended, it is fitting that tributes be paid to the men who directed and fought it. The credit belongs to many.

The most indelible impression which I brought back from a brief tour of the American forces in the European theater while the drives into Germany were moving at full speed was the competence of the whole intricate organization from top to bottom and from front lines to the rear supply bases. Everyone seemed to know what his job was and was doing it.

In passing around the credit, the American commanding generals should not be overlooked. They devised and executed campaigns which will be studied as models for generations to come. The two American generals I heard talked about most and with the most ardent approval overseas were Omar N. Bradley and George S. Patton Jr.

One might call Patton the G.I.'s general, and Bradley the generals' general. Patton has gripped the imagination not only of his own troops but of all others. He is the dashing, slashing fighting man with whom everyone likes to be identified. The best way to build up the morale of a new division is to give it Patton. Members of units which have served with the Third Army and have since been transferred continue to refer to themselves as Third Army or Patton men. The supply and service troops back of his army also feel that they are part of it and are proud of the association.

Outwardly, except that both are tall and rather slender, Bradley is almost the diametric opposite of Patton. He is as quiet and unassuming as he was when he left Washington to go to Tunisia about two years ago. He has often been described as looking like a school teacher. That is a good comparison, but I should say rather he looks and acts like a good family physician—the quiet, gentle, good-humored kind whom you like and trust at first sight.

To the officers and men down the line Bradley, who eschews publicity, is a shadowy figure. But officers who should know best regard him as the greatest military brain in the Allied armies in Europe. He has made many of the decisions and devised many of the plans for which others have received the primary credit. He directs the instruments under his command as Toscanini conducts an orchestra. He is a master of timing and direction. Theoretically he gives orders only to the commanding generals of the armies within his group, but he often makes suggestions which go further down. He calls the generals under him by their first names and they call him "Brad."

And they all know when "Brad," after studying his war map, makes an inquiry or suggestion about the disposition of their divisions, it is based on astute military analysis.

In emphasizing the reputations of Bradley and Patton, I don't wish to imply that the other top generals are not top-notch in ability. Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, of the Ninth Army, and Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch Jr., of the Seventh, who has received much less publicity than he deserves, are soldiers whose intelligence and level-headedness win the respect of the passing visitor and hold that of the men who have worked and fought under them. Generals Devers and Hodges, whom I did not see, also seem to be highly respected.

General of the Army Eisenhower remains best known in Europe, as well as here, as a tactful diplomat and excellent chairman of the board. But, as he has cemented his hold on the diverse elements and personalities under his command, he has gained in self-assurance and inclusiveness. He has made a few of the most critical decisions of the campaign just closed. And today, although he remains a diplomat, he is less a mediator, than he is the recognized boss.

KING GEORGE VI

Message to Gen. Eisenhower

(Editor's Note: This is the text of a congratulatory telegram sent to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower by King George of Britain last night.)

Eleven months ago you led the Allied Expeditionary Force across the English Channel, carrying with you the hopes and prayers of millions of men and women of many nations. To you was entrusted the task of annihilating the German armies in western Europe and thus liberating the peoples whom they had enslaved. All the world now knows that after fierce and continuous warfare this force has accomplished its mission with a finality achieved by no other such expedition in history.

On behalf of all my people I ask that you, its supreme commander, will tell its members how deeply grateful we are to them and how unbounded is our admiration for the courage and determination which under wise leadership have brought them to their goal of complete and crushing victory.

I would ask you also to convey a special message of congratulation to my own forces now under your command. Throughout the campaign they have acquitted themselves in all services with valor and distinction for which their fellow countrymen will forever hold them in honor.

Jubilee Spirit Was Missing

ELLAVILLE.—Localities rejoiced without hilarity Monday over the anti-climatic announcement of Germany's surrender. The first flash came just after youngsters had filed into classrooms to begin a new week and caught many a maidless housewife trying to get breakfast dishes washed. Downtown most men were going to the postoffice where the flag still flew half-mast mourning the death of President Roosevelt on the eve of victory. At the telephone exchange Miss Dorothy Chapman, who had just relieved the night operator, was swamped with calls for everybody was trying to call some body. Several excited citizens kept threatening to ring the big fire bell atop the courthouse but no one did. Many who were in the mood to pitch a celebration were compelled to soft pedal the urge by the restraint of the general populace. They were visibly disappointed, though, that the jubilee spirit was missing. Almost everybody said immediately that the war was still on with Japan and that the day the sons of heaven quit would be the time to go wild. Stores and offices remained open and business went on as usual. Little groups clustered around drugstore radios during the morning waiting for confirmation of the first report. Some housewives breathlessly ordered groceries, hoping to beat the holiday closing which they expected. At Ellaville school students arranged a chapel service to review the course of the war and give thanks for the European victory. The service board in front of the city park bore six gold stars in memory of Schley countians who died to help conquer Germany.

That life may go on...

It is SPRING in Italy.

From two mountain-tops the American and Nazi artillery are dueling.

Far down in the valley, a plowman and his patient oxen plod imperceptibly under the shells passing overhead, turning the brown earth in a furrow. He is old—long since arrived at the age of honorable retirement when a man should sit in the sun with his pipe and glass of wine. But his sons and grandsons are gone from the village, swallowed up by the war.

The season has come when the earth must be opened up for planting—for the begetting of another generation of crops. In war or peace, this cannot wait. Men must eat to live, and it is God's will that life should go on.

It was the same in Normandy. While armor clanked along the highways and infantrymen with Tommy guns flushed Nazi snipers from the hedgerows, the Norman farmers, calm and stubborn as the soil itself, tended their fields and performed the ancient ritual of farm chores.

Whether he practices the simple agriculture of the European countryman or the highly mechanized methods of modern American farming, the farmer symbolizes the continuity of life in war or peace.

International Harvester, known wherever soil is tilled, serves the farmer in war or peace.

PW CAMPS COCK EARS FOR SURRENDER BUT ARE CALM AS NEWS SWEEPS STATE

All was quiet in the prisoner of war camps throughout the state, a survey made by The Constitution revealed. Nazi prisoners confined in the many camps throughout the state have been expecting the unconditional surrender for days, Army officials said yesterday.

At the giant Camp Wheeler prisoner of war camp, an Army spokesman said the men went about their work as usual yesterday, but were listening out for every bit of news.

News of the unconditional surrender spread throughout the camp, he said, but the prisoners failed to show any emotion. "It seemed to be just another day in prison for them," the spokesman said. "They went about their various tasks in a perfectly normal manner."

ANNALIE THARPE'S BIRTHDAY

Annalee Tharpe, lovely young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rayford W. Tharpe, of Austell, observed her 13th birthday on Sunday, and in celebration of the event, her parents gave a weekend house party in her honor at their summer cottage, Rayanna, on Lake Groover.

Annalee's guests included 13 of her classmates from Washington Seminary, and what a grand time they had boating, hiking, playing games, and holding wieners on the lake shore! It was a bit chilly for swimming, but there were many other diversions, so the girls didn't really miss it.

Invited on the house party were Rowena Rice, Sylvia Sanders, Margaret Whitner, Jane MacLeod, Kate Schweppe, Margaret Hunt, Stella Wellborn, Patsy Rockwood, Jean Higgins, Suzanne Thompson, Donna De Sain, Barbara Long and Betty Walker.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

After 15 years of married life we are blessed with our first baby—now 10 weeks old, and although friends made all sorts of gloomy prognostications about a woman of my age having her first baby, thanks to that wonderful booklet, "Preparing for Maternity," I breezed through the whole thing with the greatest of ease. . . . We love and cuddle him now and then, though I suppose we shouldn't.

Answer—No objection to cuddling the baby occasionally, provided he is all paid for and provided you spell it correctly. Cuddling, not coddling.

POTATOES NOT FATTENING

Are potatoes fattening? Necessary to maintain good health? Husband says we need potatoes once a day at least. I say they are starchy and fattening and do not supply anything essential to a well balanced diet.

(MRS. F. R. H.)

Answer—Your husband is more nearly correct about potatoes. You evidently have the starch obsession—everybody needs, must have, a liberal amount of starch daily to maintain good nutrition.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

(Do you have trouble getting your child to eat properly? If so, read about the new strategy we are employing with our youngsters. It was especially needed in the case of Judy. She has now increased her intake to 2,500 calories daily.)

CASE F-262: Judy, aged 10, is our only daughter, sandwiched midway between our four sons. She has little appetite. We are always trying to get her to eat. At the farm last summer we often had family dinners with fried chicken and fried rabbit, plus all the trimmings.

But Judy would take two slices of bread, a slice of tomato between them, and contentedly sit there enjoying her sandwich. The rabbit and chicken were disdained.

She may eat a hot dog or hamburger, but seldom more than one. When I'm not dieting, I could eat her entire daily input of calories and scarcely feel I had had a square meal!

HOW TO MAKE THEM EAT

We take her to the farm, where she has a pony, a dog and four brothers, but she sits around and reads most of the time.

Even when she does get out to romp and play, she still has a canary appetite. Her mother has worried about it and we have urged her to take more food, but to little avail. Many of her lunches didn't total 500 calories.

She keeps growing taller, however, but is thin. Vitamins show little effect on her food intake. It looked like a hopeless task to perk up her appetite until Mrs. Crane and I started dieting a couple of weeks ago.

Then she and the other children grew interested in calories. They began to compete to see who could eat the most. Judy grew enthusiastic and now has almost doubled her caloric intake.

How long this new game will last, I don't know, but you parents with youngsters who are problems like Judy might send for my dieting chart and employ it in reverse order with your children, letting them vie for high records while you try to make low scores thereon.

CALORIC INTAKE

The daily recommended caloric quotas of children, as given by the National Research Council's Committee on Food and Nutrition, are as follows:

Age of Child	Calories
1-3 years	1,200
4-6 years	1,600
7-9 years	2,000
10-12 years	2,500

Judy should thus be getting approximately 2,500 calories per day. Since she has been competing with Daniel and David she has been reaching that quota.

This morning she proudly informed me she had eaten 900 calories. Last night's meal was 1,200. My time at the table is thus partly consumed in counting calories for the children.

Most of these sudden enthusiasms of youngsters run their course and ultimately fizzle out, so maybe they'll lose interest in calories in a few weeks.

STRETCH YOUR STOMACH

They will have re-educated their stomachs by stretching the latter until it becomes accustomed to a larger volume of food. Thus, the stomach will not register "full" on Judy's former 500 calorie input but will prod her into consuming 800 to 1,000 calories at a meal before that comfortable signal to "stop."

Organs of the body thus learn habits. If your stomach or your urinary bladder have become accustomed to registering "full" on too small a volume, force them to stretch for a few weeks until you restrain them. Then they will hold much more before they give you the conventional signal that they are full.

'HAS IT REALLY COME?' Army Wives Receive V-E News Calmly

By YOLANDE GWIN

Wives of top-ranking Army leaders on the western front received the news of today's V-E Day proclamation with calmness and thankfulness last night.

Mrs. Courtney H. Hodges, the pretty, gracious and prematurely white-haired wife of the commanding general of the American First Army, asked "Has it really come?" when The Constitution informed her of peace in Europe.

"It is so hard to express my feelings at a time like this," she said. "I am happy and grateful that that part of the war is over and I think it is wonderful. I am so happy for all, from the privates on up, for it is they who have won the war and made this wonderful peace come at last. I feel such a relief and thankfulness for their families that their 'man' will be home again."

Going to church today was the topmost act planned by Mrs. Emil F. Reinhardt, wife of Major Gen. Reinhardt, whose 69th Division made the historic junction with the Russians at Targu.

NO TIME FOR HILARITY

Yes, now that V-E Day is actually here, it is wonderful, but the date is certainly no time for hilarity and funmaking. There are many broken hearts all over the world which is the price we paid for this news. I think we must all remember that we still have the war on the other side to win. The half we have won is wonderful however, and I am glad for all whom it touches personally.

Mrs. W. H. Craig, whose husband, Col. Craig, is member of Gen. Alexander Patch's staff at Seventh Army headquarters, was busy "carrying on" as a nurse's aide at the Fort McPherson hospital late yesterday as the news continued to pour from the radio regarding today's celebrations.

The news is exciting and thrilling, but the war is far from over as far as Mrs. C. A. Dahlan is concerned, for her husband, Lt. Col. Dahlan, is still in the Pacific.

'NEWS PERFECT'

"The news is just about perfect, but it won't be a hundred percent to me until my husband returns. I am happy for everyone else all over the world to whom this means so much," she said at the quarters of her parents, Gen. and Mrs. Sidney Erickson, at Fort McPherson.

Another Fort McPherson wife who received the V-E Day news was Mrs. Robert L. Oliveros, whose husband, Maj. Oliveros, has been with the Seventh Army in Europe for two years.

"If my husband would just hurry home, that would be the best V-E news I could think of," she said at the quarters of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Burgh S. Burnet, at Fort McPherson.

Mrs. Edward P. King Jr., whose husband, Gen. King, has been a prisoner of the Japanese since Pearl Harbor, said she was "overjoyed" at the V-E Day news.

STAYS GLUED TO RADIO

"I have been glued to the radio all day," she said, "and I am overjoyed to think victory in Europe has come at last, for that victory will speed up victory in the Pacific. I am grateful that the men soon will be ready to clean

CITY HALL OPEN, V-E DAY OR NOT

Atlanta will follow the lead of the state and county governments and all city hall functions will be maintained today regardless of the official end of hostilities in Europe.

City schools will remain in session, but teachers and others will stress the fact that the European war has ended, and that Japan still remains in the fight, and all efforts must be centered on the Pacific struggle.

out the Japs so that the world will have total victory."

Mrs. J. A. Pickering said:

"For me, like a lot of others, the war is just half over, but I am happy the bloodshed is over in Europe."

Gen. Pickering is artillery commander of the Eighth Division of the First Army.

Dr. Ashby Jones, Wife Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Dr. Ashby Jones, retired pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, and Mrs. Jones, who reside at 211 Beverly road, N. E., yesterday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Dr. Jones was pastor of the Baptist church at Bargetown, Ky., when he married Mrs. Jones, the former Miss May Turner, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Turner, at the bride's home in Richmond, Ky.

The couple moved to Atlanta in 1917 and have lived here since then, except for six years when Dr. Jones was pastor of a church in St. Louis, Mo. They returned to Atlanta when he retired.

Mrs. Jones said their 50th anniversary would be celebrated quietly, with a family dinner. Their only son is Turner Jones, of Atlanta, and they have two grandchildren.

Navy To Release Some 42 or Over, and Others

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The Navy today announced that within the next six months it plans to discharge some enlisted men 42 years of age or older, who request discharge, and some enlisted men who are physically qualified only for limited duty.

A statement said the purpose of the action is to increase the over-all efficiency of the fighting forces by releasing older men and men unqualified for general duty and replacing them with younger men who are fully qualified to meet the needs of the fleet.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—The morning hours and until 1:41 p. m. are the best hours of the day, favoring pleasures, social ideas and dealings which call for a jovial nature. After 1:41 p. m. headstrong tendencies should be curbed.

April 19-May 20 (TAURUS)—Before 9:08 a. m. favors ideas that are slow and steady but the entire day is not auspicious for changes and beginnings. After 9:08 a. m. the tendency is towards extravagance and a disregard for the feelings of others. Give yourself time before putting into action the things you desire and don't be ready to take offense.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—During the entire day you will have more than usual capacity for work that requires an alert mentality. You can introduce new methods in the things you are attempting and transactions started today will lead to misapprehensions, which will lead to misapprehensions.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Investments, financial dealings and seeking favors from legal and moral sources are favored previous to 10:14 a. m. Between 10:14 a. m. and 10:22 p. m. you have a tendency towards over indulgence of appetite and carelessness, which will lead to misapprehensions.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—If you do not want quick movement, and desire that what you undertake today will not be completed quickly, you may well enter into affairs that are considered hard and laborious. More will be gained by attending to necessities and not ideas that have been hanging fire for some time. Stay away from real estate transactions, and use diplomacy around older people.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Financial, legal and professional interests will seem to be at a standstill around this date, but they are likely to be postponed to a later date. Haste, impulsiveness and aggressiveness in these lines should be avoided. Family affairs and

ON THE AIR

By PAUL JONES

Jane Pickens, soprano star of Columbia network's "American Melody Hour," will feature Irving Berlin's "All of My Life" and "Let's Take the Long Way Home" during today's show, scheduled for 8:30 p. m. over WGST. Baritone Bob Hannon offers "Bel Bottom Trousers," "The More I See You" and "Someday Somewhere." Contralto Evelyn MacGregor contributes "The Green Hills of Home" and "Just a Prayer Away." The Knightsbridge Chorus offers "Sweetheart of All My Dreams" and "Candy." Orchestra and chorus are heard in "O Sacred Head Now Wounded." Frank Hummert produces.

Helmut Dantine, promising young Hollywood actor, will be starred in the romantic melodrama, "Interference," during today's presentation of "Theater of Romance" (WGST at 7:30 p. m.).

. . . Actor Dantine has appeared in many leading films, among them "Passage to Marseille," which starred Humphrey Bogart. . . "Interference," an English play of intrigue, blackmail and murder, was co-authored by Roland Pertwee and Harold Dearden. Adaptation of "Theater of Romance" is by Margaret Lewerth, who has modernized the story and set the locale in the United States.

Frank Morgan will star in an adaptation of John Collier's short story "Sleeping Beauty" during Columbia's "This Is My Best." "Sleeping Beauty" is a curious modern fantasy based on the fairy tale, but in Collier's version something different happens: when the English Prince Charming kisses the sleeping beauty, her first words are spoken in a hill-billy dialect . . . rather decidedly upsetting, eh what? . . . Listen to WGST at 8:30 p. m. for this one. . . .

EDEN 'BEST SPEAKER'

'Stay Tough' at Frisco, Navy Scribe Tells Allies

By STERLING SLAPPEY.
The San Francisco Conference will accomplish more if the United States and Britain stay tough. They began to get tough about April 27 or 28. Russia can understand and appreciate someone who stands by his own feet and acts hard. That's the way the Soviets got where they are and that's what they understand.

The opinion of Aviation Ordnance Second Class Baron H. Asher, of 501 Boulevard, is based on observations from the press section of the San Francisco United Nations Conference where he represented a Navy newspaper. In his estimate of the power wielded by the Big Four, Asher said the United States and Britain were one and two, respectively, with Russia and China holding the third and fourth spots. The line-up changes temporarily, but usually settles to this order quickly.

PRESS SENTIMENT
The press section in Frisco was against the admission of Argentina to the conference, but was all for the United States action in getting tough on the Polish question. A lot of the press boys thought that if Russia got three votes then the United States should get 48—one for each of the states. Of course, that is a little overdrawn, but they were against the three votes given to the Russians.

"Anthony Eden is the best speaker and makes the most impressive appearance at the conference. Not a sound can be heard when he speaks because he usually says something and delivers it well. Stettinius is a good speaker. Molotov isn't formal at all. Soong is brilliant and he certainly gets a world of respect from the delegates, the 19-year-old Atlanta sailor said. He was one of the youngest men present at the conference.

MOLOTOV THE STAR
Asher named Molotov as the center of attraction at the conference. More people wait to see him pass as he enters the War Memorial Opera House, where the conference is housed, than any other delegate.

"The Russians have a wonderful air of mystery about them and the folks out there eat it up. Wherever Molotov goes, there is a car full of secret servicemen in front of his car and another bringing up the rear. He travels with about 12 guards in big, long Army cars. That's the sort of stuff that attracts attention. As far as I could see Anthony Eden and Stettinius do not have the police with them.

"Too many cooks spoil the broth and that is almost what is happening at the conference. The press section out there is crowded and the reporters only have their knees to write on. The papers, magazines and radio folks have sent too many out there," Asher declared.

He said the delegates are seated on the main floor of the opera house. The newsmen and other photographers are seated up in the first balcony with the more important newspapermen and wire service representatives in the second balcony. The third balcony is used for the less important foreign correspondents and the fourth for the few spectators who are given tickets to attend. The opera house will seat about 5,000 people in all.

Asher served 18 months aboard a Navy carrier in the Pacific as a gunner on several types of planes. He has been in attacks on Palau, Saipan, Formosa, Guam, Iwo Jima and the Philippines. At the San Francisco conference he represented the "Sea Breeze," published at the Navy's Watsonville, Cal., base. Asher was attending Georgia Tech when he joined the Navy and is a graduate of Tech High school.
